Producers Deny Any Dangerous Berries On Sale

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government threw a shadow over the Thanksgiving dinner table Monday by disclosing some contamination of the 1958 and 1959 cranberry crop by a cancer-producing chemical. But producers quickly denied any dangerous berries are on sale to the public.

Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, reported at a news conference that parts of the 1958 and 1959 cranberry crop from Washington and Oregon were contaminated by a weed killer, the active ingredient of which has induced cancer in rats.

Asked what the housewife should do if it develops that contaminated berries have been widely distributed, Flemming replied that if she is unable to learn the origin and year of the berries "to be on the safe side she doesn't buy."

Flemming's disclosure brought a statement from Ambrose E. Stevens, executive vice president of the National Cranberry Assn., that "We can state that to the best of our knowledge all cranberries in groceries and supermarkets today are pure and wholesome and untainted."

"Inflamatory" Statement

Stevens said "we are shocked that the U.S. government has made public what we consider an inflammatory statement." He said the disclosure came after the industry had consulted with the government and taken effective steps to remove any danger to the public.

While he reported contamination only of cranberries, Flemming said the Food and Drug Administration is looking into the situation to determine whether any other food crops may have been affected by the weed killer.

Other questions and answers, as far as available:

Q. What is the dangerous chemical and where did it come from?

A. Aminotriazole, a weed killer used by some growers and taken into berry plants. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration fed it to rats over a two-year period in a proportion of 10 parts to a million and found it induced thyroid cancer. Contamination so far found in cranberries is on the order of one-tenth of one part per million.

Consumption Called Risky

Q. Is human consumption of the contaminated berries risky?

Steel Mills, Ore Vessels, Mines Step Up Activity

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steel mills, coal mines and ore boats stepped up activity by the hour Monday, inching back into operation after the record 116-day steel strike.

Nearly 30 per cent of the 500,000 steelworkers were back on the job. Iron ore boats, stalled in transit by the steel strike, began moving again on the Great Lakes. Many coal mines reopened.

Most steelworkers appeared happy to be back at work after four months of idleness. Some expressed concern, however, that they may be on strike again with expiration of the 80-day cooling-off period under a Taft-Hartley law injunction.

For the first time in months some steel—that left behind at the start of the strike—rolled from the plants. New steel already was being produced in plants at Cleveland and Lorain, Ohio.

But it will be weeks before new steel moves in any significant amounts. U. S. Steel Corp., the nation's No. 1 producer, hopes to reach 25 per cent of capacity this week.

In Washington, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service director, Joseph F. Finnegan, said he does not plan to call further formal conferences in the steel dispute for about two weeks.

Finnegan said he would keep trying for a break in the deadlock through informal talks with both sides.

In Pittsburgh, David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union, called for a meeting of the union's Executive Board and Wage Policy Committee in New York Thursday. He said he wanted to give the policy makers a situation report.

In western Pennsylvania captive coal mines employing more than 5,000 resumed operation. An additional 3,100 miners will be recalled Tuesday. Captive mines are those owned by steel companies.

Probers Brave Gasoline Fumes In Tanker Hulk

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Investigators cautiously braved dangerous gasoline fumes Monday to probe the still-hot decks and depths of the buckled and smouldering tanker Amoco Virginia which burned Sunday. Eight men perished and 30 suffered injury.

Firemen said gasoline fumes remained so concentrated the ship could explode at any moment.

Capt R. R. Combs and six of his crew died as the 19-hour fire, fed by a heavy cargo of gasoline and fuel oil, wrecked the pride of the American Oil Co. tanker fleet.

The death toll rose to eight Monday when D. H. Chandler, 26, a Houston fireman, fell into a flooded hold and drowned.

The fire was smothered shortly after dusk Sunday. The fire consumed 38,000 barrels of heating oil and an estimated 20,000 barrels of gasoline.

Some 65,000 gallons of gasoline remained in the flooded holds. Gasoline fumes prevented nearly 20 waiting vessels from moving on the 50-mile ship channel that ties Houston with the Gulf of Mexico.

The plate seams over some of the holds have ruptured and gas is seeping out, said Fire Chief C. M. Bullock. "A flashback could put us right back where we were."

Only investigators and a clean-up crew were permitted to enter the Hess Terminal where the Amoco Virginia had tied up.

Cause of the fire remained undetermined. Dudley S. Hall, operations foreman for Hess, said it started either on a barge, or in the water between the tanker and three barges alongside the vessel.

Hall said he looked up to see flame bearing down from the bow of the ship. He cut the loading tube valves and ran.

"The barge went up first and then the fire jumped to the ship with a whoosh," Hall said.

There also was no damage estimate. Two major explosions and a series of lesser blasts buckled the six-million-dollar tanker and it settled to the mud of the channel. Four barges and a tugboat were destroyed or damaged.

India Sources Say Chou Plan Unacceptable

China Proposes Troop Pullback, "Summit" Talks

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Red China's Premier Chou En-lai proposed Monday to settle the angry border dispute with India at a personal meeting with Prime Minister Nehru. Indian sources said Chou's new approach is unacceptable.

Refusing to give ground on claims to 40,000 square miles of Himalayan soil India regards as its own, the Chinese Premier suggested both sides pull back their forces 12½ miles in the disputed zone.

"The entire approach is repugnant to India's stand on its internationally recognized border," an authoritative Indian source said.

Nehru Voices No Opinion

Nehru himself mentioned Chou's note in a report to a committee of his Congress Party but expressed no opinion, a committee member reported. Nehru has declared he is willing to negotiate but has never said anything about sitting down with Chou to talk things over.

Chou's note was handed to Nehru Sunday, then broadcast Monday by Peiping radio before its contents were made known here. If he suggested a site for the meeting there was no public mention of it.

The Red Chinese Premier, in urging prompt action on his plan, said "clashes which both sides do not want to see may occur in the future."

Would Discuss Other Issues

"The Chinese government proposes that, in order to discuss further the boundary question and other questions in the relations between the two countries, the prime ministers of the two countries hold talks in the immediate future," Chou's note said.

Chou suggested that the armed forces of China and India each withdraw 12½ miles at once from the so-called MacMahon line.

The MacMahon line was drawn in 1914 by Sir Henry MacMahon, a British Indian official, to show the border between India and Tibet.

No Chinese government ever has recognized the line. Red China claims territory as far as 80 miles south of the line in India's Northeast Frontier Agency, where some border clashes have occurred.

Climbers Safe, Nepal Reports

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A Japanese expedition feared lost in an attempt to scale a mighty, unconquered peak in the Himalayas is safe, the Foreign Office reported Monday.

Whether the 32-member party became the first to put a man atop 23,440-foot Mt. Gauri Sankar —named for the Hindu god of destruction — remained unanswered.

The climbers had not been heard from since they were about to begin the final assault on the summit five weeks ago. Then came word of fierce avalanches and it was feared the climbers had been swept to their deaths.

The Foreign Office said a porter sent to look for the expedition had found members safe at Menung, a village down the mountain slope. The party was preparing to set out for Namchebazar, another village that is a two-week trek from Katmandu.

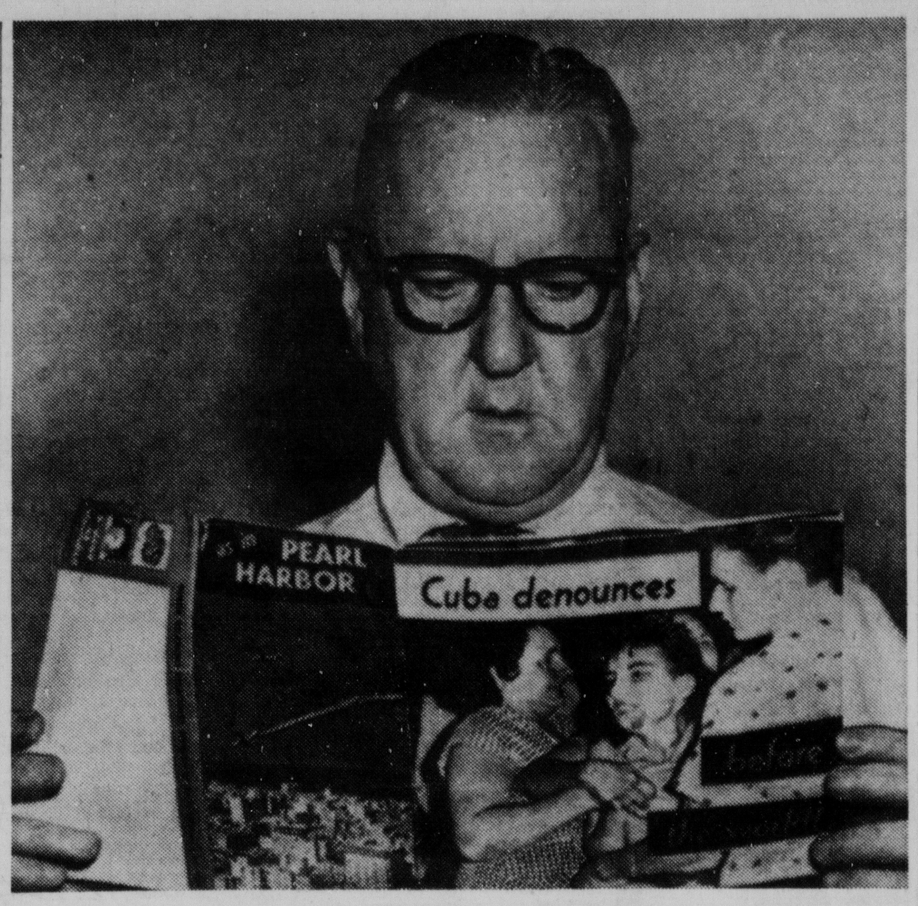
The report that the party was safe bore out the faith of Mrs. Hideki Kato, wife of the leader of the expedition. She refused to believe Kato was lost. "My husband has climbed mountains for 20 years," she said last week. "He would not lose out to a blizzard."

Sen. Langer's Body To Lie In State Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The body of Sen. William Langer (R-N.D.) will lie in state for six hours Tuesday in the Senate chamber where he served for 19 years.

Langer, a colorful political figure who often kicked over party's traces, died in his sleep here Saturday night. He was 73.

This will be the first time the body of a senator has been taken to the chamber since funeral services were held there for Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) in 1957. Langer's body will remain from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. e.s.t., the office of Sergeant-at-Arms Joseph C. Duke announced.



U.S. Denounces Cuban Brochure

State Dept. Press Officer Lincoln White poses with a copy of an anti-American pamphlet published by the Cuban Ministry of State. Cuba Pamphlet Draws U. S. Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Monday accused Cuba of publishing an "offensive brochure" full of "inaccurate, malicious and misleading reports" about the alleged bombing of Havana last month.

The bluntly worded charges were contained in a statement handed to Cuban Ambassador Ernesto Dihigo by Assistant Secretary of State Roy R. Rubottom. It complained about continued Cuban charges that U. S.-based planes bombed and strafed Cuban citizens.

Rubottom also showed Dihigo a copy of the brochure which the State Department charged was "evidently designed further to create an atmosphere of hostility in United States-Cuban relations."

The brochure, printed in English, was described as "pretty gruesome." It arrived in the mail over the weekend addressed to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and bore the seal of the Cuban Ministry of State.

Dihigo later said he considered the foreign ministry pamphlet "only a defense of my government's position" and "not an attack on the U.S. government or the U.S. people."

The envoy conceded that the document must have been prepared for circulation abroad because it was written in English rather than Spanish.

The 16-page brochure consisted mainly of pictures of persons allegedly wounded on Oct. 21. Its cover carried a picture of two small planes over Havana with the words, "as in Pearl Harbor."

The pamphlet did not directly accuse the United States of instigating the raid, but made frequent references to followers of the deposed Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista, now living in Florida.

It said the "bombardment" was directed by these "war criminals, fugitives from revolutionary justice who refuged in Florida and other points abroad."

Russians See French A-Test Harming Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union claimed Monday that a French atomic bomb test in the Sahara would harm chances for reaching agreement in Geneva on suspension of nuclear weapons tests.

M. D. Yakovlev, the Soviet delegate, made the statement in the 82-nation Political Committee where he expressed full support for a resolution urging France not to hold the test.

He spoke after Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge indicated the United States believes France can conduct the test without danger to the surrounding area.

Lodge's cautiously worded statement avoided outright support of France such as that voiced last week by Britain.

Yakovlev declared Lodge's speech was a "puzzling one, since while minimizing the dangers for mankind, he actually came out in favor of the tests proposed by France."

The Soviet delegate referred to the test ban negotiations now taking place in Geneva by U.S., British and Soviet representatives and added:

"It is the duty of every state to take no steps liable to create difficulties in reaching the swiftest possible agreement on suspension of nuclear weapons tests."

He said the Soviet Union's decision to suspend tests was conditional on the Western powers doing likewise.

Morocco, which is negotiating with the United States on the future of U.S. bases, is pushing for a resolution urging France not to conduct the test.

Ban On Word 'Liver' In Pill Ads Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court on Monday denied Carter Products Inc. the right to call its medicine Carter's Little Liver Pills.

It did so by refusing to review an order of the Federal Trade Commission barring use of the word "liver" in advertising the pills.

Carter's Little Liver Pills have been sold for more than 70 years throughout the United States and the name has appeared in advertisements hundreds of thousands of times.

In addition to barring use of the word "liver," the FTC banned advertising of Carter's claim that its product increases the flow of bile from the liver.

Safe Burglars Battle Police, Free Hostage

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) —Safe burglars blundered into a swank Florida golf club early Monday and found themselves cornered by police summoned by the caretaker's wife.

They seized the caretaker and held him hostage in the clubhouse for 4½ hours, then managed to escape.

A huge manhunt began and by late afternoon three suspects were picked up for questioning. Police believed three or four men were involved—but the burglars wore ghoulish Halloween masks. They fled emptyhanded.

At least one of the masked gunmen was wounded in a brief, five-minute exchange of pistol shooting with police but he used the caretaker, John L. MacDonald, 58, as a shield and slipped away into the darkness. The others slipped away, apparently one by one, as police cautiously closed in.

The caretaker's wife, hiding in the next room, heard the gunmen threaten to kill her husband, heard one of them groaning after being wounded by a bullet and didn't know until later that her husband was used as a human shield and had been released unharmed.

Scores of police moved in behind armor and barricades and rushed the clubhouse at dawn, but found only the badly-shaken woman—still hiding behind the locked door of the club office. Her husband was released by his captor on the golf course.

Unknown to the gunmen, MacDonald's 56-year old wife saw her husband taken captive. Then she locked herself in the clubhouse office, called police and kept the telephone line open for 4½ hours to give officers a running account of the sounds she heard from the room in which the desperadoes were cornered with her husband as hostage.

The scene was the rambling, Spanish-type clubhouse of the Lakewood Country Club, one of Florida's best known golf clubs.

Mine Contract Clause Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — A union ban against commercial coal operators handling coal from mines paying sub-standard wages has been dropped pending a court test under the new federal labor relations law, it was learned Monday.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Union, agreed with mine owners to abandon the key proviso of the union's 1959 labor contract pending legal clarification.

Enforcement of the contract clause was abandoned for the time being in a resolution adopted by the joint industry contract committee composed of three union chiefs, including Lewis, and three industry representatives.

The resolution stated that the tighter ban against labor union boycotts contained in the new law throws the coal contract provision into legal doubt. The boycott provisions of the new law go into effect Friday.

Under the new coal contract for commercial mines, negotiated in December, 1958, and effective April 1, 1959, the signatory mine operators agree to refuse to handle, buy or sell or have anything to do with coal produced at mines paying wages below union standards.

Mazey Says T-H Invoked As "Payoff"

Steel Contributions To President's '56 Campaign Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP)—Labor union leader Emil Mazey declared Monday, "I charge President Eisenhower with a political payoff to steel companies" in using the Taft-Hartley law to halt the 116-day steel strike.

Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the United Auto Workers, said the alleged payoff was in return for hundreds of thousands of dollars in contributions to Eisenhower's 1956 re-election campaign.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, asked for comment, said "I haven't seen his speech and will reserve comment until I do."

"President Eisenhower and the steel companies have been engaged in a conspiracy against the American people," Mazey shouted at a convention of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department.

Investigation Suggested

Mazey suggested that the Justice Department investigate "whether there was a conflict of interest in how the President conducted himself in handling the steel dispute."

The UAW officer said officials of U.S. Steel, National Steel, Armco, Bethlehem, Inland and Jones & Laughlin steel companies contributed a total of $214,500 to Eisenhower's 1956 campaign.

Mazey also said George Allen, a member of Republic Steel's board of directors and a frequent golfing and bridge companion of Eisenhower, contributed $16,300 to that campaign.

Resolution Adopted

After Mazey finished, delegates representing seven million members of the Industrial Union Department adopted a resolution accusing the Eisenhower administration of attempted strike breaking in seeking the court order that ended the strike for at least 80 days.

Eisenhower sought the strike-ending injunction on grounds the prolonged industry shutdown was endangering national health and safety. He repeatedly has urged the two sides to get together and work out a settlement of their dispute.

Wife Stabs Bob Crosby; He Denies Striking Her

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Bob Crosbys agreed Monday they had a fight Saturday night in which bandleader Bob was stabbed in the shoulder with a letter opener. But each told a different version.

June Crosby, 39, said her husband, without provocation, punched her with his fists and broke one of her ribs while their 8-year-old daughter watched.

Crosby, 46, brother of crooner Bing, denied striking her and said:

"My wife just blew up. If she was injured it was during the tussle for possession of the letter opener."

Mrs. Crosby told a reporter:

"It was terrible. He struck me with his fists. It was just a case of simple assault. There were no words, no provocation.

"It's happened many times before. If you live with Bob on the inside, he's not the easy-going Crosby that the public imagines him to be."

Bob, reached at the home of his brother Larry, said:

"It's regrettable. But my wife just blew up. It was the result of a series of family crises. She just built up to it and I don't think she really wanted to injure me with that letter opener. She was in a fit of rage."

Crosby said it took five stitches to close the shoulder wound. He was also scraped on the arm and stomach. His injuries were not serious.

His wife said he has moved out of their home. He at first tried to duck the press.

New York Police Probe Hotel Thefts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police Monday investigated the theft of more than $46,000 in cash and jewels from two suites at the Savoy Hilton Hotel.

Police said a burglar either picked locks or used a pass key to gain entrance Saturday to suites occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gore of Wichita Falls, Tex. ,and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rudolph of Beverly Hills, Calif. Their suites were only a floor apart.

The Gores reported $43,750 in jewels and $2,090 in cash missing. The Rudolphs said the burglars took $600 in cash but overlooked $45,000 worth of jewelry in a dresser drawer.

"Shocking" Rise In VD Among Youths Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veneral disease appears to be on the increase again throughout the nation, including "shocking" rises among youths 15 to 19 years old, a Public Health Service official reported Monday.

Dr. William J. Brown, of the service's Communicable Disease Center at Atlanta, said there is evidence suggesting a steady rise since 1954. He blamed, among other things, false confidence by the general public, and even some doctors, that penicillin alone could eradicate gonorrhea and syphilis.

He said that as regards syphilis, for example, Americans in the prepenicillin era looked upon it as a threat of life, health and sanity. Now, he said, the public attitude toward the disease is "as fickle and transitory as it was toward the jigsaw puzzle and the hula hoop."

Addressing the 66th annual convention of the Assn. of Military Surgeons of the United States, Dr. Brown warned that if VD is to be eradicated there must be closer attention by the public to getting proper medical attention; more accurate diagnosis of cases, and —above all — more checking into the sexual contacts of known cases.

"Recently," he said, "private physicians, clinics and hospitals have reported increases in both early syphilis and gonorrhea in colored and white, male and female, poor and rich, young and old, urban and rural, and every category in between, all across the country."

Climbers Safe, Nepal Reports

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A Japanese expedition feared lost in an attempt to scale a mighty, unconquered peak in the Himalayas is safe, the Foreign Office reported Monday.

Whether the 32-member party became the first to put a man atop 23,440-foot Mt. Gauri Sankar —named for the Hindu god of destruction — remained unanswered.

The climbers had not been heard from since they were about to begin the final assault on the summit five weeks ago. Then came word of fierce avalanches and it was feared the climbers had been swept to their deaths.

The Foreign Office said a porter sent to look for the expedition had found members safe at Menung, a village down the mountain slope. The party was preparing to set out for Namchebazar, another village that is a two-week trek from Katmandu.

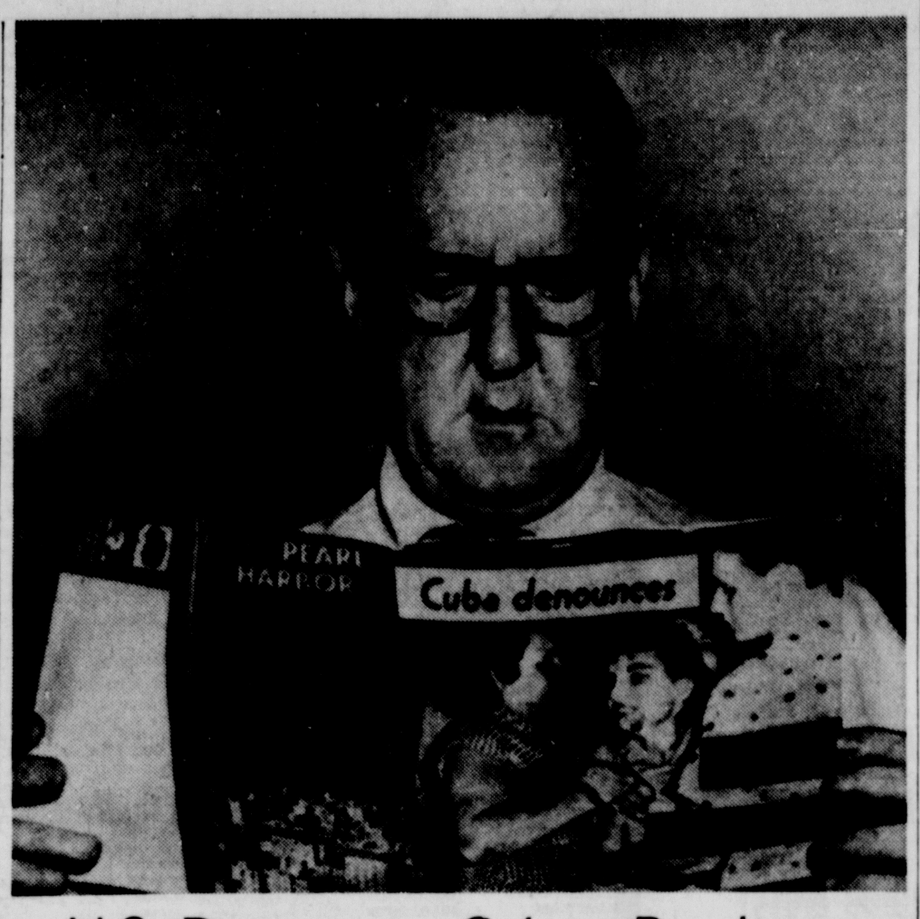
The report that the party was safe bore out the faith of Mrs. Hideki Kato, wife of the leader of the expedition. She refused to believe Kato was lost. "My husband has climbed mountains for 20 years," she said last week. "He would not lose out to a blizzard."

Sen. Langer's Body To Lie In State Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The body of Sen. William Langer (R-N.D.) will lie in state for six hours Tuesday in the Senate chamber where he served for 19 years.

Langer, a colorful political figure who often kicked over party's traces, died in his sleep here Saturday night. He was 73.

This will be the first time the body of a senator has been taken to the chamber since funeral services were held there for Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) in 1957. Langer's body will remain from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. e.s.t., the office of Sergeant-at-Arms Joseph C. Duke announced.



U.S. Denounces Cuban Brochure

State Dept. Press Officer Lincoln White poses with a copy of an anti-American pamphlet published by the Cuban Ministry of State. A State Dept. spokesman said a copy of the pamphlet had been sent in the mail to Secretary of State Christian Herter. The pamphlet blames the U. S. for disorders in Havana last Oct. 21. The State Dept. accused Cuba of publishing an "offensive brochure" full of "inaccurate, malicious and misleading reports." (AP Photofax)

Cuba Pamphlet Draws U.S. Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Monday accused Cuba of publishing an "offensive brochure" full of "inaccurate, malicious and misleading reports" about the alleged bombing of Havana last month.

The bluntly worded charges were contained in a statement handed to Cuban Ambassador Ernesto Dihigo by Assistant Secretary of State Roy R. Rubottom. It complained about continued Cuban charges that U. S.-based planes bombed and strafed Cuban citizens.

Rubottom also showed Dihigo a copy of the brochure which the State Department charged was "evidently designed further to create an atmosphere of hostility in United States-Cuban relations."

The brochure, printed in English, was described as "pretty gruesome." It arrived in the mail over the weekend addressed to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and bore the seal of the Cuban Ministry of State.

Dihigo later said he considered the foreign ministry pamphlet "only a defense of my government's position" and "not an attack on the U.S. government or the U.S. people."

The envoy conceded that the document must have been prepared for circulation abroad because it was written in English rather than Spanish.

The 16-page brochure consisted mainly of pictures of persons allegedly wounded on Oct. 21. Its cover carried a picture of two small planes over Havana with the words, "as in Pearl Harbor."

The pamphlet did not directly accuse the United States of instigating the raid, but made frequent references to followers of the deposed Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista, now living in Florida.

It said the "bombardment" was directed by these "war criminals, fugitives from revolutionary justice who refuged in Florida and other points abroad."

Russians See French A-Test Harming Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union claimed Monday that a French atomic bomb test in the Sahara would harm chances for reaching agreement in Geneva on suspension of nuclear weapons tests.

M. D. Yakovlev, the Soviet delegate, made the statement in the 82-nation Political Committee where he expressed full support for a resolution urging France not to hold the test.

He spoke after Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge indicated the United States believes France can conduct the test without danger to the surrounding area.

Lodge's cautiously worded statement avoided outright support of France such as that voiced last week by Britain.

Yakovlev declared Lodge's speech was a "puzzling one, since while minimizing the dangers for mankind, he actually came out in favor of the tests proposed by France."

The Soviet delegate referred to the test ban negotiations now taking place in Geneva by U.S., British and Soviet representatives and added:

"It is the duty of every state to take no steps liable to create difficulties in reaching the swiftest possible agreement on suspension of nuclear weapons tests."

He said the Soviet Union's decision to suspend tests was conditional on the Western powers doing likewise.

Morocco, which is negotiating with the United States on the future of U.S. bases, is pushing for a resolution urging France not to conduct the test.

Ban On Word 'Liver' In Pill Ads Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court on Monday denied Carter Products Inc. the right to call its medicine Carter's Little Liver Pills.

It did so by refusing to review an order of the Federal Trade Commission barring use of the word "liver" in advertising the pills.

Carter's Little Liver Pills have been sold for more than 70 years throughout the United States and the name has appeared in advertisements hundreds of thousands of times.

In addition to barring use of the word "liver," the FTC banned advertising of Carter's claim that its product increases the flow of bile from the liver.

Safe Burglars Battle Police, Free Hostage

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) —Safe burglars blundered into a swank Florida golf club early Monday and found themselves cornered by police summoned by the caretaker's wife.

They seized the caretaker and held him hostage in the clubhouse for 4½ hours, then managed to escape.

A huge manhunt began and by late afternoon three suspects were picked up for questioning. Police believed three or four men were involved—but the burglars wore ghoulish Halloween masks. They fled emptyhanded.

At least one of the masked gunmen was wounded in a brief, five-minute exchange of pistol shooting with police but he used the caretaker, John L. MacDonald, 58, as a shield and slipped away into the darkness. The others slipped away, apparently one by one, as police cautiously closed in.

The caretaker's wife, hiding in the next room, heard the gunmen threaten to kill her husband, heard one of them groaning after being wounded by a bullet and didn't know until later that her husband was used as a human shield and had been released unharmed.

Scores of police moved in behind armor and barricades and rushed the clubhouse at dawn, but found only the badly-shaken woman—still hiding behind the locked door of the club office. Her husband was released by his captor on the golf course.

Unknown to the gunmen, MacDonald's 56-year old wife saw her husband taken captive. Then she locked herself in the clubhouse office, called police and kept the telephone line open for 4½ hours to give officers a running account of the sounds she heard from the room in which the desperadoes were cornered with her husband as hostage.

The scene was the rambling, Spanish-type clubhouse of the Lakewood Country Club, one of Florida's best known golf clubs.

Mine Contract Clause Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — A union ban against commercial coal operators handling coal from mines paying sub-standard wages has been dropped pending a court test under the new federal labor relations law, it was learned Monday.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Union, agreed with mine owners to abandon the key proviso of the union's 1959 labor contract pending legal clarification.

Enforcement of the contract clause was abandoned for the time being in a resolution adopted by the joint industry contract committee composed of three union chiefs, including Lewis, and three industry representatives.

The resolution stated that the tighter ban against labor union boycotts contained in the new law throws the coal contract provision into legal doubt. The boycott provisions of the new law go into effect Friday.

Under the new coal contract for commercial mines, negotiated in December, 1958, and effective April 1, 1959, the signatory mine operators agree to refuse to handle, buy or sell or have anything to do with coal produced at mines paying wages below union standards.

Mazey Says T-H Invoked As "Payoff"

Steel Contributions To President's '56 Campaign Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP)—Labor union leader Emil Mazey declared Monday, "I charge President Eisenhower with a political payoff to steel companies" in using the Taft-Hartley law to halt the 116-day steel strike.

Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the United Auto Workers, said the alleged payoff was in return for hundreds of thousands of dollars in contributions to Eisenhower's 1956 re-election campaign.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, asked for comment, said "I haven't seen his speech and will reserve comment until I do."

"President Eisenhower and the steel companies have been engaged in a conspiracy against the American people," Mazey shouted at a convention of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department.

Investigation Suggested

Mazey suggested that the Justice Department investigate "whether there was a conflict of interest in how the President conducted himself in handling the steel dispute."

The UAW officer said officials of U.S. Steel, National Steel, Armco, Bethlehem, Inland and Jones & Laughlin steel companies contributed a total of $214,500 to Eisenhower's 1956 campaign.

Mazey also said George Allen, a member of Republic Steel's board of directors and a frequent golfing and bridge companion of Eisenhower, contributed $16,300 to that campaign.

Resolution Adopted

After Mazey finished, delegates representing seven million members of the Industrial Union Department adopted a resolution accusing the Eisenhower administration of attempted strike breaking in seeking the court order that ended the strike for at least 80 days.

Eisenhower sought the strike-ending injunction on grounds the prolonged industry shutdown was endangering national health and safety. He repeatedly has urged the two sides to get together and work out a settlement of their dispute.

Wife Stabs Bob Crosby; He Denies Striking Her

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Bob Crosbys agreed Monday they had a fight Saturday night in which bandleader Bob was stabbed in the shoulder with a letter opener. But each told a different version.

June Crosby, 39, said her husband, without provocation, punched her with his fists and broke one of her ribs while their 8-year-old daughter watched.

Crosby, 46, brother of crooner Bing, denied striking her and said:

"My wife just blew up. If she was injured it was during the tussle for possession of the letter opener."

Mrs. Crosby told a reporter:

"It was terrible. He struck me with his fists. It was just a case of simple assault. There were no words, no provocation.

"It's happened many times before. If you live with Bob on the inside, he's not the easy-going Crosby that the public imagines him to be."

Bob, reached at the home of his brother Larry, said:

"It's regrettable. But my wife just blew up. It was the result of a series of family crises. She just built up to it and I don't think she really wanted to injure me with that letter opener. She was in a fit of rage."

Crosby said it took five stitches to close the shoulder wound. He was also scraped on the arm and stomach. His injuries were not serious.

His wife said he has moved out of their home. He at first tried to duck the press.

"Shocking" Rise In VD Among Youths Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veneral disease appears to be on the increase again throughout the nation, including "shocking" rises among youths 15 to 19 years old, a Public Health Service official reported Monday.

Dr. William J. Brown, of the service's Communicable Disease Center at Atlanta, said there is evidence suggesting a steady rise since 1954. He blamed, among other things, false confidence by the general public, and even some doctors, that penicillin alone could eradicate gonorrhea and syphilis.

He said that as regards syphilis, for example, Americans in the prepenicillin era looked upon it as a threat of life, health and sanity. Now, he said, the public attitude toward the disease is "as fickle and transitory as it was toward the jigsaw puzzle and the hula hoop."

Addressing the 66th annual convention of the Assn. of Military Surgeons of the United States, Dr. Brown warned that if VD is to be eradicated there must be closer attention by the public to getting proper medical attention; more accurate diagnosis of cases, and —above all — more checking into the sexual contacts of known cases.

"Recently," he said, "private physicians, clinics and hospitals have reported increases in both early syphilis and gonorrhea in colored and white, male and female, poor and rich, young and old, urban and rural, and every category in between, all across the country."

Rockefeller Predicts Great Benefits If Labor Foregoes Work Week Slash

NEW YORK (AP)—Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller suggested Monday night that if American labor foregoes further work-week reductions the national economic growth rate can almost double.

He said such a step could bring higher living standards, expanded government services and as much as a 15-per cent cut in taxes.

In the face of growing union pressure for a 30 - hour week, Rockefeller told the Economic Club of New York in a major prepared speech:

"There is no compelling reason why American growth should be fixed at the historic 3-per cent rate, or even the postwar 4-per cent rate.

"Since 1930, our average work week has declined from over 48 hours to under 38 hours, or by 3½ hours every decade. The increase in leisure has been an important social gain, but it has also diluted our production record. Few would urge that we should keep cutting the work week at this rate for an indefinite period into the future.

"If we should decide at any point to forego further work week reductions in favor of increased output of goods and services, this of itself would allow us to realize the full benefit of our almost 3 per cent annual increase in output per man hours. This normal increase in productivity, plus a reasonably expectable 2 per cent annual increase in the work force, would put a 5 - per cent growth rate well within our reach."

Rockefeller is widely regarded as an undeclared candidate for the GOP presidential nomination for 1960. His forum was a dinner gathering of some of the top men in industry and finance in the East.

Code Of Ethics Up To Council

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes says he will support a code of ethics for Maryland's public officials if the Legislative Council feels the state needs one.

The governor says he thinks there is already enough law on the books to cover misconduct but it may be such laws will need codification or strengthening. He has asked the council to study the problem and says he will abide by its decision.

Tawes registered his views in a weekend letter to Sen. George W. Della (D-Balto 6th), chairman of the between-sessions arm of the Legislature. The governor was asked by Baltimore attorney Hyman Pressman to name a study commission to draw up a code of ethics for state and local officials.

Tawes said the oath of office prescribed by the state constitution "is written in broad terms, but in my opinion is definite enough to cover any improper conduct on the part of officials who are required to take an oath."

He said various statutes also spell out the duties and responsibilities of public officials and restrict their activities.

The question to be decided, the governor told Della, is "whether these regulations ought to be codified, defined more clearly or made more restrictive, particularly with regard to conflicts of interest."

African Mobs Attack Whites

CAPETOWN, South Africa (AP)—Angry mobs of Africans armed with long knives and clubs were reported attacking whites Monday night in Paarl, 35 miles northeast of here.

Early reports said 5 Africans and 3 whites had been hospitalized.

First news of the rioting was brought by blood-spattered whites who arrived here in cars dented and smashed by rocks.

Police reinforcements were rushed to Paarl in trucks.

The riots broke out over the government banishment of Elizabeth Mafeking, a 40-year-old African mother of three.

Mrs. Mafeking, a trade union official, was ordered to leave her husband and family and live in the remote Vtyburg district, 750 miles away. She was reported to have left Monday afternoon.

Motherwell Lawyer Granted Extra Week

DOWNIEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — The arraignment of Larry Lord Motherwell, charged with the murder of a wealthy Washington, D. C., widow, was continued Monday to Nov. 16.

Motherwell, 43, has pleaded innocent to a charge of murdering Mrs. Peal Ida Putney, 72, whose skeleton was found Aug. 16 near Sierraville, about 35 miles from this tiny Sierra community in northern California.

Motherwell's attorney, John T. Regas of Washington, D. C., was granted the extra week to study the transcript of testimony taken by the Sierra County Grand Jury.

Goldstein Guilty Of Malfeasance

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former acting Capt. Hyman Goldstein of the Rackets Division was found guilty Monday of malfeasance in office and of permitting a disorderly house to operate.

In an abridged trial, Criminal Court Judge Edwin Harlan sentenced Goldstein to 18 months on the malfeasance charge and one year on the disorderly house charge, both to run concurrently with the sentence Goldstein is presently serving.

Goldstein began serving a three-year term in the House of Correction last June 10 after his conviction on a subornation of perjury charge.

Judge Harlan found Goldstein guilty on the latest charges on the basis of evidence heard two weeks ago at a similar trial of his superior, former Inspector Clarence O. Forrester.

Q. How much contamination has been detected?

A. Two of seven 1959 shipments from the Northwest were found definitely contaminated. The Justice Department has been asked to seize one shipment but the other already has been distributed. Preliminary tests on 10 other lots, not yet shipped, indicate additional contamination will be found.

Q. Has there been any reported contamination of berries from the other principal growing states of Wisconsin, New Jersey and Massachusetts in 1958 or 1959?

A. No, but the FDA is checking production in these areas. Authorities in Massachusetts and New Jersey said flatly berries from those states are safe.

Q. Is there any way for the retail buyer to tell where the berries came from?

A. Not as far as the government knows now. If the industry can supply any means of so identifying berries, it will be made public.

Man Attacks Cop In Effort To Get Himself Killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police said Monday an unemployed pants presser attacked a patrolman in an effort to get himself killed. He was captured and police said he would be sent to District General Hospital for mental observation.

Two shots were fired during the scuffle between Park Police Pvt. Chesley B. Stokely and James W. Pitts Jr., 43, of Washington.

Police Capt. William T. Murphy gave this account of the incident:

Pitts went to Fairlawn Park intending to commit suicide by jumping into the Anacostia River. Pitts said the water looked too cold but he spotted Stokely sitting in a patrol car nearby.

Pitts tapped on the car window and asked Stokely to get out of the car to see something. When Stokely got out he was knocked to the ground by Pitts.

The two men grabbed for Stokely's pistol. Stokely fired one shot which went wild and the gun discharged again when Pitts knocked it from the policeman's hand.

The two were still fighting when other policemen rushed onto the scene.

Dyna Soar Contract Awarded Martin Co.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force Monday selected the Boeing Aircraft Co. and The Martin Co. as contractors for the Dyna Soar rocket vehicle designed to speed a man to the fringe of space and permit him to land after orbiting the earth.

The two aviation firms will work directly under the Wright Air Development Division of the Air Research and Development Command.

Boeing will be responsible for building the vehicle portion of the system, integrating it with the rocket booster and testing the final product.

Martin will make the rocket booster that will furnish power to achieve speeds five times higher than sound.

The Dyna Soar project, which has been under preliminary development for several years, is designed to explore and solve problems of flight at speeds and altitudes just under those required for satellites.

Officer Steals Police Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Washington policeman, who was given a second chance two years ago after a trial board recommended his dismissal from the force, has been charged with stealing $3,400 of police funds.

Deputy Police Chief Earl Hartman said Pvt. Earl D. Fox Jr., 43, the father of seven, admitted taking the money from the vault in the police clerk's office.

Hartman said the shortage was discovered last Friday and Fox was summoned from his Silver Spring, Md. home Sunday night for questioning. He was charged with grand larceny and embezzlement.

Fox took the money in amounts ranging from $20 to $500 over the past several months and used some of it to pay bills, Hartman said.

On Dec. 3, 1957 Fox was charged with drinking while on duty and was suspended from the force. A trial board recommended his dismissal but Police Chief Robert V. Murray, after receiving a pleading letter from the policeman's 13-year-old daughter, recommended that Fox be given another chance.

He was restored to duty on Jan. 15, 1958, and assigned to the chief clerk's office. Fox has been a policeman since April, 1947.

Code Of Ethics Up To Council

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes says he will support a code of ethics for Maryland's public officials if the Legislative Council feels the state needs one.

The governor says he thinks there is already enough law on the books to cover misconduct but it may be such laws will need codification or strengthening. He has asked the council to study the problem and says he will abide by its decision.

Tawes registered his views in a weekend letter to Sen. George W. Della (D-Balto 6th), chairman of the between-sessions arm of the Legislature. The governor was asked by Baltimore attorney Hyman Pressman to name a study commission to draw up a code of ethics for state and local officials.

Tawes said the oath of office prescribed by the state constitution "is written in broad terms, but in my opinion is definite enough to cover any improper conduct on the part of officials who are required to take an oath."

He said various statutes also spell out the duties and responsibilities of public officials and restrict their activities.

The question to be decided, the governor told Della, is "whether these regulations ought to be codified, defined more clearly or made more restrictive, particularly with regard to conflicts of interest."

Motherwell Lawyer Granted Extra Week

DOWNIEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — The arraignment of Larry Lord Motherwell, charged with the murder of a wealthy Washington, D. C., widow, was continued Monday to Nov. 16.

Motherwell, 43, has pleaded innocent to a charge of murdering Mrs. Peal Ida Putney, 72, whose skeleton was found Aug. 16 near Sierraville, about 35 miles from this tiny Sierra community in northern California.

Motherwell's attorney, John T. Regas of Washington, D. C., was granted the extra week to study the transcript of testimony taken by the Sierra County Grand Jury.

Goldstein Guilty Of Malfeasance

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former acting Capt. Hyman Goldstein of the Rackets Division was found guilty Monday of malfeasance in office and of permitting a disorderly house to operate.

In an abridged trial, Criminal Court Judge Edwin Harlan sentenced Goldstein to 18 months on the malfeasance charge and one year on the disorderly house charge, both to run concurrently with the sentence Goldstein is presently serving.

Goldstein began serving a three-year term in the House of Correction last June 10 after his conviction on a subornation of perjury charge.

Judge Harlan found Goldstein guilty on the latest charges on the basis of evidence heard two weeks ago at a similar trial of his superior, former Inspector Clarence O. Forrester.

Q. How much contamination has been detected?

A. Two of seven 1959 shipments from the Northwest were found definitely contaminated. The Justice Department has been asked to seize one shipment but the other already has been distributed. Preliminary tests on 10 other lots, not yet shipped, indicate additional contamination will be found.

Q. Has there been any reported contamination of berries from the other principal growing states of Wisconsin, New Jersey and Massachusetts in 1958 or 1959?

A. No, but the FDA is checking production in these areas. Authorities in Massachusetts and New Jersey said flatly berries from those states are safe.

Q. Is there any way for the retail buyer to tell where the berries came from?

A. Not as far as the government knows now. If the industry can supply any means of so identifying berries, it will be made public.

Dyna Soar Contract Awarded Martin Co.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force Monday selected the Boeing Aircraft Co. and The Martin Co. as contractors for the Dyna Soar rocket vehicle designed to speed a man to the fringe of space and permit him to land after orbiting the earth.

The two aviation firms will work directly under the Wright Air Development Division of the Air Research and Development Command.

Boeing will be responsible for building the vehicle portion of the system, integrating it with the rocket booster and testing the final product.

Martin will make the rocket booster that will furnish power to achieve speeds five times higher than sound.

The Dyna Soar project, which has been under preliminary development for several years, is designed to explore and solve problems of flight at speeds and altitudes just under those required for satellites.

On Veteran's Day, a pledge that their sacrifice shall not have been in vain . . . that we shall ever be vigilant.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: That man who signed himself "Superior Sex" really made me mad. He sounded just like my old man. In fact if my husband could spell decent I would swear he wrote that letter.

So men are the "strong sex" are they? Since when? I always said if the men had to have babies there wouldn't be any humans on earth in 100 years — only fish and squirrels. The average woman, if she's a wife and mother, is on her feet all day and half the night. Show me a man with varicose veins and I'll show you 10 women. Ask any doctor.

When a woman marries she takes her husband for better or worse but a man always tries to make his wife over so she'll be like his mother, sister or an old girl friend.

All the articles today tell us "How To Keep HIM Happy." You'd think every slugger wearing pants was the Prince of Wales or something.

When my husband had a bad cold last winter I was up half the night rubbing his chest and bringing him hot tea. I had an operation in June. Who do you think was up at night with me? The dog.—TYPICAL AMERICAN WIFE

DEAR ANN: I've always considered you a sensible person but the answer you gave the aunt who was responsible for the 16-year-old Tom Boy was downright foolish.

Isn't a 16-year-old girl better off wrestling in the back yard in broad daylight with 13 and 14-year-old neighbor boys than with a 20-year-old hotshot in a parked car?

Most young girls are either necking up a storm, sitting in front of a mirror making up their eyes, talking on the phone for hours, or wearing out record-players. Since when has physical exercise fallen into ill repute?

I was a Tom Boy and I'm proud of it. It was an honor to be called when a kite got caught in a tree, or when the fellas needed an extra "guy" for football.

I'd bet my life you don't have a daughter or you'd have answered that problem differently. —MRS. S.

DEAR MRS. S.: You've got a bum bet. My daughter is in college. If at 16 she was called to get a kite out of a tree or be the "extra fella" on a football team, I would have been mighty disturbed.

Some girls mature later than others, physically and emotionally, and this is nothing to become alarmed about. But a girl of 16 who is pitting her physical strength against 13 and 14-year-old neighbor boys has an immature social approach.

Such a girl needs guidance so that she can feel at home with boys of 17 and 18. She should not be operating at the 12-year-old level.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please wire me collect the name of that dame who says she has "extra sensory perception" and can tell in advance what's going to happen.

I will pay all her expenses to Las Vegas, and then we'll go to the track at Del Mar. — F. E. B.

DEAR F. E. B.: No dice. If she could tell in advance what was going to happen, she could buy her own ticket to Las Vegas and Del Mar.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

City's Lakes Over Crests

The city's two lakes are over the crests of the spillways for the first time in many months, Sanitary Engineer Franklin J. Blaney said yesterday.

Lake Gordon is .5 feet above the crest and Lake Koon .2 feet over, his report to the Mayor and Council shows. In June, the lakes were full but it is the first time they have been over the top in months, Blaney added.

A year ago, Gordon was 2.4 feet below the crest and Koon 10.7 below.

The lakes are full despite the fact consumption has increased in recent months. Water use for the week ending yesterday averaged 13,680,000 gallons a day.

PPG Engineer To Address Club

Ray G. Joiner, chief industrial engineer at Works 7 of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company here, will speak at the meeting of the Tri-State Traffic Club Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. in the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Joiner will speak on the flat glass industry.

An Air Force pilot in World War II he received a bachelor of science degree in industrial engineering in 1948 from Pennsylvania State University.

Joiner was employed by PPG at its Works 4 plant in Ford City in June 1948 and in 1954 was appointed methods engineer for Works 4 and 6 at Ford City.

He was assigned to the Cumberland plant on April 1, 1956.

Admits Playing Sick

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI)—A 24-year-old housewife has admitted a four year spree of feigned illnesses during which she tricked doctors into admitting her to the hospital on 30 separate occasions, one of them for a major operation, the newspaper Sun-Herald reported. In many of the instances, the woman drank her own blood to simulate an internal hemorrhage, the paper said.

Midland Council Orders Collection Of All Taxes

Action Planned Against Delinquents

MIDLAND—At a meeting of Mayor Lionel D. Baker and the town council, officials voiced disapproval of property owners who are habitual tax delinquents and owe taxes for many years. Mayor Baker told the council that in order to accomplish projects the new council had in view for this year, it must have the cooperation of all delinquent tax payers.

The council voted unanimously to "get tough" with all delinquent tax payers and will take the necessary steps for collection.

The new town attorney, Jack I. Mullen, reported to the mayor and council that he had made a thorough study of all city ordinances, and found some that are obsolete. Mr. Mullen stated he would give a full report and recommendation at the next meeting.

Commissioner Donald Cook, reported that a check for $200 had been received from the auxiliary of the Sportsmens Club. The money was used to purchase swings and a large sliding board for the new playground. Commissioner Cook also stated that the ladies would hold bake sales during the winter to raise funds to purchase benches and beautify the playground next spring.

A request was made by several citizens who reside on Koontz Avenue, better known as the Big Lane, to have the shoulder of the street raised, to prevent the water from running on their properties. Mayor Baker instructed street commissioners, Alex Rennie and Donald Cook to contact the Cumberland Contracting Company to see if this work could be done immediately.

No Parking, in front of the Post Office has been strictly enforced by the town bailiff, Joseph Monahon, which has added greatly to the safety of all citizens entering and leaving the Post Office, it was reported.

New spouting has been added to the City Hall, and extensive repairs and painting completed in the council chambers. New lights which were presented to the mayor and council by Grace Methodist Church, will be installed this week.

The financial report for October was given by the treasurer, J. Edwin Winters, and approved by the council. The next meeting will be held on Monday, December 7.

Frostburg Pool Shows Profit For Summer

Council Praises Management

FROSTBURG—The net operating profit for the Frostburg swimming pool during the past summer was $1,838.66 according to the statement of revenue and expenses released last week by William Vogtman, city clerk.

The report showed total operating revenues amounted to $6,461.45 which included admissions of adults, students, children, children under 6, Girl and Boy Scout activities, Bible schools, night swimming, Eckhart and Grantsville PTA's return of change and refunds and concession stand sales, the latter amounting to $2,664.35.

The expenses side of the ledger showed the total was $4,838.66. This included $1,810.99 for supplies for the concession stand. General pool expenses were $705, new equipment $64.64 and salaries and wages $2,258.03.

The pool was operated for a total of 84 days between May 30 and September 7 and was closed 10 days due to bad weather.

There were 1,495 adult admissions; 3,881 student admissions; 8,786 children, 794 under 6 years of age; 41 Girl and Boy Scout admissions; 24 Bible School admissions; 628 night admissions and 152 other admissions.

Fifty new wire check-out baskets were purchased and the average mean temperatures were: opening (11 a.m.) 77 degrees; closing (8 p.m.) 83.2 degrees; average temperature 80 degrees and average water temperature 74.3 degrees.

The pool was managed again this year by Ellsworth Filer, who according to the Mayor and City Council, put in time and hours "far beyond the call of duty." Filer inaugurated night swimming for adults only which added $314 to the revenue. The council in a show of appreciation granted Filer a $50 bonus at the council meeting Monday evening.

Since the pool has been closed, major repairs have been completed to the walls and bottom. Wall repairs have resulted in an additional overall depth of the pool of 6 inches. This, it was pointed out, increases the safety factor in the high diving. The pool will be readied for winter and flooded within the next few days, Commissioner William Preston stated.

W.Va. Hunting Improvement Is Reported

ROMNEY — Nine game check stations were set up at road blocks by the West Virginia Conservation Commission, in District 2, in order to gather data on the success of hunters in the area.

During the third weekend of the Mountain State hunting season, seven stations were set up at road blocks. Comparisons were made on the success of hunters.

The opening day check showed an average of one half to one squirrel per hunter, depending on the area.

The check on the third weekend showed one and one half to two squirrels per hunter. It also required only half as many hours to get one squirrel during the second check.

The first check showed ten hours of hunting per squirrel, but the second check showed five hours per squirrel.

Game manager Thomas Sanford states that the mast crop of last year was light, and a low food supply is reflected in low squirrel reproduction. This is the supposed cause of the scarcity of squirrels this season.

West Virginia Is Concerned With High Rate Of Teacher Turnover

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — "People of West Virginia, school boards and the legislature will likely not face up to the spectre of public school disaster because of lack of qualified teachers until the roof falls in," says Phares Reeder, executive secretary of the WVEA.

He makes the statement in an announcement accompanying an editorial in a forthcoming West Virginia School Journal, official association publication to 17,000 state teachers.

"That great, all-covering roof of the public school system — the instructional and administrative staff — is not far from collapse," Reeder says. "Unless an all-out effort is made soon the next decade will bring that downfall. In fact we fear that time has already run out!"

Reeder says that he has just finished "appraising research facts with prominent school superintendents and other leaders."

He cited four major forces that he believes are destroying the "supports to the roof of the schools." They are the aging of state teachers, the desire to quit and go elsewhere, failure to train replacements and the "tragic failure to get and keep those we train."

"There will be lots of doubting Thomases," Reeder's editorial states. "Indifference will continue — but we challenge the public to study the facts and arrive at any different conclusion." Citing figures showing that 1580 teachers disappeared from the ranks last year, he says "No doubt we will go on adding to the growing list of emergency replacements —go on lowering our standards."

He concluded, "Our colleges train about 930 new and beginning teachers each year — but only 350 of those are taking jobs in West Virginia classrooms. Even if we got all the 930 new prospects that our colleges produce we could not match the 1580 loss."

In his analysis, Mr. Reeder shows that area counties have been vitally affected.

As of the current term which began in September, Grant County lost 13 teachers. Three moved to other states; two to other counties and one to private industry. Three left to attend school; one married and changed location; and three quit for miscellaneous seasons.

In Hampshire County, turnover totaled nine. Two moved to other states; one to another county; two to enter private business or industry, and one to attend school. Three married and changed locations; two were retired.

Hardy County fared a little better and lost only six teachers. Two moved to other states; one to another county; two to attend school and one took leave of absence.

In Mineral County there was a teacher loss of 22. Of this total, six went to other states to teach; one went to another county; one entered business or industry; two are attending school; three married and changed locations; two retired; three took leave of absence and four left for miscellaneous reasons.

Three teachers left Pendleton County service. One is teaching in another state and one in another county; one retired.

Pocahontas County lost 10 teachers. One retired; one took leave of absence; one moved to another state and one to another county. Five married and changed location of residence. One left to attend school.

Preston County saw a teacher-turnover of 44 instructors.

Eleven left to teach in other states and three to teach in other counties. Ten were married and changed locations; one entered the Armed Forces; three failed to certify; four retired; five took leave of absence and seven quit for miscellaneous reasons.

Eight quit in Tucker County. One is teaching in another state and two in other counties; one entered private industry or business; one entered the Armed Forces; two retired and one took leave of absence.

During the recruitment of teachers for the present term, it was shown that 513 teachers ot West Virginia, left the state for higher pay and better working conditions and tools; 259 changed counties: 119 left the profession for business or private industry employment; 78 are attending schools and colleges; 25 entered the Armed Forces; 38 failed to certify; 243 entered retirement and 158 took leave of absence. Another 158 did not sign contracts to teach for various and miscellaneous reasons.

West Virginia's teacher turnover in the current year totals 1,824, including those moving from one county to another or leaving teaching service for one reason or another. This is said to be one of the highest changes in the country, and is attributed to low salaries, large classes and working conditions, officials maintain.

Midland Council Orders Collection Of All Taxes

Action Planned Against Delinquents

MIDLAND—At a meeting of Mayor Lionel D. Baker and the town council, officials voiced disapproval of property owners who are habitual tax delinquents and owe taxes for many years. Mayor Baker told the council that in order to accomplish projects the new council had in view for this year, it must have the cooperation of all delinquent tax payers.

The council voted unanimously to "get tough" with all delinquent tax payers and will take the necessary steps for collection.

The money was used to purchase swings and a large sliding board for the new playground. Commissioner Cook also stated that the ladies would hold bake sales during the winter to raise funds to purchase benches and beautify the playground next spring.

A request was made by several citizens who reside on Koontz Avenue, better known as the Big Lane, to have the shoulder of the street raised, to prevent the water from running on their properties. Mayor Baker instructed street commissioners, Alex Rennie and Donald Cook to contact the Cumberland Contracting Company to see if this work could be done immediately.

W.Va. Hunting Improvement Is Reported

ROMNEY — Nine game check stations were set up at road blocks by the West Virginia Conservation Commission, in District 2, in order to gather data on the success of hunters in the area.

During the third weekend of the Mountain State hunting season, seven stations were set up at road blocks. Comparisons were made on the success of hunters.

The opening day check showed an average of one half to one squirrel per hunter, depending on the area.

The check on the third weekend showed one and one half to two squirrels per hunter. It also required only half as many hours to get one squirrel during the second check.

The first check showed ten hours of hunting per squirrel, but the second check showed five hours per squirrel.

Game manager Thomas Sanford states that the mast crop of last year was light, and a low food supply is reflected in low squirrel reproduction. This is the supposed cause of the scarcity of squirrels this season.

West Virginia Is Concerned With High Rate Of Teacher Turnover

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — "People of West Virginia, school boards and the legislature will likely not face up to the spectre of public school disaster because of lack of qualified teachers until the roof falls in," says Phares Reeder, executive secretary of the WVEA.

He makes the statement in an announcement accompanying an editorial in a forthcoming West Virginia School Journal, official association publication to 17,000 state teachers.

"That great, all-covering roof of the public school system — the instructional and administrative staff — is not far from collapse," Reeder says. "Unless an all-out effort is made soon the next decade will bring that downfall. In fact we fear that time has already run out!"

Reeder says that he has just finished "appraising research facts with prominent school superintendents and other leaders."

He cited four major forces that he believes are destroying the "supports to the roof of the schools." They are the aging of state teachers, the desire to quit and go elsewhere, failure to train replacements and the "tragic failure to get and keep those we train."

"There will be lots of doubting Thomases," Reeder's editorial states. "Indifference will continue — but we challenge the public to study the facts and arrive at any different conclusion." Citing figures showing that 1580 teachers disappeared from the ranks last year, he says "No doubt we will go on adding to the growing list of emergency replacements —go on lowering our standards."

He concluded, "Our colleges train about 930 new and beginning teachers each year — but only 350 of those are taking jobs in West Virginia classrooms. Even if we got all the 930 new prospects that our colleges produce we could not match the 1580 loss."

In his analysis, Mr. Reeder shows that area counties have been vitally affected.

As of the current term which began in September, Grant County lost 13 teachers. Three moved to other states; two to other counties and one to private industry. Three left to attend school; one married and changed location; and three quit for miscellaneous seasons.

In Hampshire County, turnover totaled nine. Two moved to other states; one to another county; two to enter private business or industry, and one to attend school. Three married and changed locations; two were retired.

Hardy County fared a little better and lost only six teachers. Two moved to other states; one to another county; two to attend school and one took leave of absence.

In Mineral County there was a teacher loss of 22. Of this total, six went to other states to teach; one went to another county; one entered business or industry; two are attending school; three married and changed locations; two retired; three took leave of absence and four left for miscellaneous reasons.

Three teachers left Pendleton County service. One is teaching in another state and one in another county; one retired.

Pocahontas County lost 10 teachers. One retired; one took leave of absence: one moved to another state and one to another county. Five married and changed location of residence. One left to attend school.

Preston County saw a teacher-turnover of 44 instructors.

Eleven left to teach in other states and three to teach in other counties. Ten were married and changed locations; one entered the Armed Forces; three failed to certify; four retired; five took leave of absence and seven quit for miscellaneous reasons.

Eight quit in Tucker County. One is teaching in another state and two in other counties; one entered private industry or business; one entered the Armed Forces; two retired and one took leave of absence.

During the recruitment of teachers for the present term, it was shown that 513 teachers ot West Virginia, left the state for higher pay and better working conditions and tools; 259 changed counties: 119 left the profession for business or private industry employment; 78 are attending schools and colleges; 25 entered the Armed Forces; 38 failed to certify; 243 entered retirement and 158 took leave of absence. Another 158 did not sign contracts to teach for various and miscellaneous reasons.

West Virginia's teacher turnover in the current year totals 1,824, including those moving from one county to another or leaving teaching service for one reason or another. This is said to be one of the highest changes in the country, and is attributed to low salaries, large classes and working conditions, officials maintain.

City Delays Vote On Prisoner Work

The Mayor and Council yesterday held up three ordinances containing provisions affecting persons guilty of certain violations who have been sentenced to work out fines when in default.

The three were tabled for further discussion on motion b Commissioner Lucile Roeder and seconded by Commissioner John J. Long.

Ordinances held include one increasing the fine for tramps, vagrants and street walkers to $100 at the discretion of the Police Magistrate; another removing the minimum fine of $1 and retaining the maximum of $100 under a section entitled "Motor Vehicles;" and a third increasing the fine for drunkenness from $10 to $100.

All three contained the work clause.

Clarification of the city's responsibility in the event a person found guilty is sent to work was asked by City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson who said that under the law the city is empowered to place such workers under police guard or equip them with a ball and chain.

Gibson asked what position the city would be in if such an employe was taken ill or was injured while on the job.

City Attorney William R. Carscaden said a man working out a fine is not an employe of the city and is not entitled to benefits. He is working for himself, Carscaden said.

Gibson then asked if there were any case where medical care or treatment were provided a person who was incarcerated. Carscaden said in some cases and this brought the question again from Gibson whether the city would be forced to provide care for either of the two men currently working out a sentence and fine at the Lake Gordon watershed.

Carscaden said, "In my opinion no. The city has no legal responsibility while the men are working out a fine."

Mrs. Roeder said it seemed all members of council are agreed on the theory that persons who default fines should work them out, but she said "I'm not sure of our responsibility."

Long said that in view of the questions raised, he saw no need to rush passage of the ordinances and said they should receive further study.

Council passed two other ordinances introduced last week. One repeals a section about Water Street, South Mechanic Street and Harrison Street as obsolete. They deal with one-way streets. The other placed into effect a cost structure to be used by Police Magistrates at the same rate, in most instances, as for state violations. This include 50 cents for parking violations; and $1.45 for speeding and all other cases.

State's Coal Output Still On Increase

Coal production in Maryland, confined to Allegany and Garrett counties, continued on an upward climb for the fourth consecutive year, according to the annual report for 1958 just released by the Maryland Bureau of Mines.

The report of the bureau located at Westernport and headed by Frank T. Powers to Gov. J. Millard Tawes shows the two counties produced 859,899 during 1958.

This was an increase of 99,014 tons over 1957 and was nearly double that of the ten-year low in 1948 when only 441,895 tons were mined.

Garrett County, the leading shipper of coal since passing Allegany County in 1952, produced 671,185 tons and Allegany County, 187,713 tons.

Strip mine operations accounted for the major portion of Garrett County coal, with 423,750 tons being mined in that manner.

Deep mine machine coal in Garrett amounted to 197,149 tons, while digging by picks accounted for 41,284 tons.

Strip mining in Allegany County produced 87,833 tons, pick, 48,942 tons, and machine, 50,937 tons.

The Upper Potomac coal basin along the North Branch was the leader in production, shipping 379,739 tons.

Georges Creek Basin was second with 364,362 tons. Others accounted for were Upper Youghiogheny, 63,929 tons; Castleman, 47,340, and Lower Youghiogheny, 3,526 tons.

Powers noted that there were no mine fatalities in 1958, keeping up a safety record that began in 1953.

The director also noted there were no prosecutions due to violations of the mining laws during the year and there were no work stoppages due to labor trouble.

Vocational mining education was carried out during the year with classes at Kitzmiller, Barton and Frostburg being taught by Thomas B. Powell, district mine inspector, assisted by district mine inspectors Harry B. Buckley and James H. Close.

Women's Rec Club Plans Activities

The Women's Recreation Association at its first activity session Wednesday in the Fort Hill High School girls' gymnasium, made plans for the remainder of the year and issued membership cards.

The first session began with calisthenics and continued with badminton in the small gym and volleyball in the large gym. It is planned to form a volleyball league, conduct a tournament later in the year and in the meantime attempt to play high school teams in the area. A badminton tourney is also planned for later.

The association will conduct physical fitness tests among its members with medals going to winners.

In mid-December, it will start a basketball program and has tentatively approved plans for golf instruction.

Sessions of the association are conducted each Wednesday from 7 to 10 p. m. and membership is open for registration at anytime, according to Annabelle Leatherman, president.

Steel Strike End Has Effect On This Section

The resumption of work in the nation's steel mills has had an immediate effect on railroad employment in the Cumberland area with train crews expected to be called back as business picks up.

About half an hour after the Supreme Court decision in the Taft-Hartley injunction which sent the steelworkers back to work the B&O Railroad here had a request for 50 cars at a limestone quarry in Martinsburg. Limestone is used in the production of steel.

Coal mines served by the Western Maryland Railway in the Fairmont area started up again yesterday. Coal has been moved from the Fairmont coal fields during the strike, but the back-to-work movement in the steel mills will increase tonnage.

The Western Maryland expects to call back about 50 trainmen and enginemen as freight business picks up due to steel production.

F. Patrick Allender of the Allegany County Building Trades Council said that the end of the steel stoppage will have little effect on construction in this area as there are few projects under way.

The winter weather has shut down most highway work and contractors have had enough material, such as corrugated pipe to continue during the long strike.

The biggest construction project in the area, the Sugar Grove Naval Radio Research Station in Pendleton County, will be resumed. It has been halted due to a lack of steel.

About 2,000 tons of steel are needed for the 420-foot erection towers. The steel needed in completing the huge towers has been fabricated, but could not be shipped from warehouses due to the steel strike, according to the contractor on this phase of the work.

Firms which supply various materials in the steel industry will be affected by the work resumption. A number of brick plants in this area may be affected by the recall to work in the steel mills.

The Western Maryland Railway has a huge stockpile of ore which was unloaded at the Knobmount yards outside Ridgeley during the long steel strike.

There are 71 loaded gondola cars on hand also. In addition, there are several hundred loaded gondola cars on the Western Maryland on the New Line in the Connellsville section.

Stored at the Knobmount yards are 27,025 tons of Venezuelan ore (343 gondola loads), 13,390 tons of manganese ore (258 loads) and 65,702 tons of Chilean ore (936 gondola loads). This ore will be moved into the Pittsburgh area as needed.

County Group To Attend State Education Meeting

Seven Allegany County residents have accepted invitations to attend a conference in Baltimore on November 19 and 20 being sponsored by the State Board of Education.

Theme of the conference is "Financing Public Schools in Maryland During the Next Two Decades."

Attending from here will be Dr. Harry F. Butler, LaVale, local dentist; Carl O. Belt, Park Heights, representing the Parent-Teacher Association; Van Parsons, city, general chairman on the Western Maryland Railway for the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Duard Little, manager of the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory; A. Trago Brust, public relations director for the Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, and Delegate Thomas F. Conlon (D. Allegany County).

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of the Allegany County Board of Education, and Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of county public schools, will also attend.

Those who will attend the conference will be furnished pamphlets containing data on various statistics pertaining to financing schools, and discussion topics. When the conference convenes there will be discussion groups on a number of phases.

Allegany County is entitled to 14 representatives at the conference but the acceptance so far includes only those mentioned above.

Firms which supply various materials in the steel industry will be affected by the work resumption. A number of brick plants in this area may be affected by the recall to work in the steel mills.

The Western Maryland Railway has a huge stockpile of ore which was unloaded at the Knobmount yards outside Ridgeley during the long steel strike.

There are 71 loaded gondola cars on hand also. In addition, there are several hundred loaded gondola cars on the Western Maryland on the New Line in the Connellsville section.

Stored at the Knobmount yards are 27,025 tons of Venezuelan ore (343 gondola loads), 13,390 tons of manganese ore (258 loads) and 65,702 tons of Chilean ore (936 gondola loads). This ore will be moved into the Pittsburgh area as needed.

Women's Rec Club Plans Activities

The Women's Recreation Association at its first activity session Wednesday in the Fort Hill High School girls' gymnasium, made plans for the remainder of the year and issued membership cards.

The first session began with calisthenics and continued with badminton in the small gym and volleyball in the large gym. It is planned to form a volleyball league, conduct a tournament later in the year and in the meantime attempt to play high school teams in the area. A badminton tourney is also planned for later.

The association will conduct physical fitness tests among its members with medals going to winners.

In mid-December, it will start a basketball program and has tentatively approved plans for golf instruction.

Sessions of the association are conducted each Wednesday from 7 to 10 p. m. and membership is open for registration at anytime, according to Annabelle Leatherman, president.

County Group To Attend State Education Meeting

Seven Allegany County residents have accepted invitations to attend a conference in Baltimore on November 19 and 20 being sponsored by the State Board of Education.

Theme of the conference is "Financing Public Schools in Maryland During the Next Two Decades."

Attending from here will be Dr. Harry F. Butler, LaVale, local dentist; Carl O. Belt, Park Heights, representing the Parent-Teacher Association; Van Parsons, city, general chairman on the Western Maryland Railway for the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Duard Little, manager of the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory; A. Trago Brust, public relations director for the Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, and Delegate Thomas F. Conlon (D. Allegany County).

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of the Allegany County Board of Education, and Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of county public schools, will also attend.

Those who will attend the conference will be furnished pamphlets containing data on various statistics pertaining to financing schools, and discussion topics. When the conference convenes there will be discussion groups on a number of phases.

Allegany County is entitled to 14 representatives at the conference but the acceptance so far includes only those mentioned above.

Interest Rates

When this Association was organized nearly 20 years ago, interest rates on savings had sunk so low that there was not much incentive for people to save. In recent times we have watched a rash of interest rate increases. We thinks this is a good change which will help to restore the oldtime habits of thrift and saving.

This Association paid a dividend of 4% on savings at the end of the first year of its existence and has continued to pay 4% dividends ever since. At the same time is has built up reserves that now amount to 11% of all its savings share accounts.

The reasons for this extra-ordinary record are our low overhead costs of operation and all our funds are kept at work in first mortgages helping worthy people in this community to secure homes.

Inflation Takes Large Bite

In 1958 a $5,000-a-year American family lost an estimated $137.50 through inflation, according to Tax Foundation Inc. That's no small sum to be deprived of in a single year. It could make considerable difference to many households in things most people in this country take for granted.

The foundation, warning that the fight against the dollar's downward trend must be a continuing battle, points out that the latest estimate of federal spending for fiscal 1960 shows it to be $14.3 billion higher than in fiscal 1955. And federal spending is a major factor in the inflation picture.

An interesting phase of this report is the table revealing that between 1948 and 1958 loss of buying power, with its heavy inroads in the resources of the elderly, the pensioners, the disabled, and the holders of insurance, has been felt in greater or less degree in many countries of the world.

American pride in the stability of the dollar must make an adjustment in the light of the showing that, over the decade ended last year, the money of six other nations (of 35 listed) lost less buying power than ours. Those with better performance are: Portugal, with 0.6 per cent; Switzerland, 1-1; Belgium, 1-3; Ecuador. 1:15; Germany, 1.7, and India, 1.7. The American dollar follows in seventh place with 1.8 per cent annual depreciation.

It is no accident that political unrest seems to go along with severe inflation. If inflation begets unrest, all the more reason for Americans to fear it. Our political foundations are strong; the institutions of freedom are firmly based. But Americans should realize that inflation can be poisonous to free government and our safest course is to stop it in time.

These Days

The New Imperialism

I listened to the President of Guinea talk about the freedom that has come to the world and an interesting speech it was at a luncheon given in his honor by the Mayor of New York.

As one looks at a new map of Afica, however, it is cut up into bits and pieces and Guinea and Ghana are two little areas which have gained their independence. And when the President of Guinea spoke of liberty, there was much applause and when he denounced imperialism, there was more. Men get so excited over words.

But let us see the picture: In 1939, the total population of the Earth was estimated at 2,100,000,000 human beings, the current estimate is about 2,600,000,000.

In 1939, the colonies of the Western nations amounted to 815,000,000 persons; today, they have been reduced to 84,000,000 persons. The change represents the break-up of the British and Dutch Empires and the partial reduction of the French Empire.

On the other hand, in 1939, the population of Soviet Russia amounted to 170,000,000 persons. This actually represented a loss of about 10,000,000 presons between World War I and World War II. In 1959, the Communist Empire, including Russia and Red China and their satellites, amounts to 965,000,000 persons and their land mass extends from the East of Asia to West Germany, encompassing two continents.

The new imperialism therefore is Communist and the map upon which I am looking includes Tibet as Communist but not yet Bhutan, Sikkim, Ladakh or Nepal, areas into which Red China will continue to move. The new imperialism is a contiguous, unbroken area that runs from the Kurile Islands and Sakhalin to East Germany, from the Arctic to India in Asia and to the Moslem countries of Southwest Asia, into the Mediterranean. It is probably the largest contiguous area ever held by one empire, although now two major countries coalesce into the empire. What the Communists are establishing is a universal state, the Soviet Universal State, which is an empire.

Should India fall to Red China, that part of the Soviet Universal State would dominate the Indian Ocean and the east coast of Africa. Should India fall to Red China, the Moslem world in Asia and Africa could be reduced by a pincers effort between the two major nations in the Soviet Universal State, that is Soviet Russia and Red China.

While the small countries live in fool's paradise of assuming that they are safe in the shadow of the United Nations, Soviet Russia is forcing unions of other powers, outside the United Nations, to defend themselves from its insatiable imperialism. Such unions are NATO, SEATO and CENTO. There will be other combinations, so that while every small state will imagine itself independent, it will really be part of a large combination of states which will, in turn, be part of a still larger grouping. Thus, such small countries as Guinea and Ghana will be forced to attach themselves to one of these unions or to create their own. The small countries will be wiped out during the next war, should it occur. If no war takes place, these smaller countries may have an opportunity for development and growth, but whenever war comes, their peril will be the same: Small countries will not be able to maintain their independence in a general war. Therefore all the small countries favor peace.

And in the United Nations, the small countries, particularly the newer ones of Asia and Africa, coalesce in the hope that by sheer numbers, they will be able to control situations. Therefore, more and more the Great Powers negotiate outside the United Nations. Should a series of Summit Conferences develop, it will mean that the Great Powers will make their decisions outside the United Nations altogether and that the body will not even be called upon to ratify the decisions of the Great Powers taken at Summit Conferences of which there will be several. As a matter of fact, President Eisenhower's trip to Europe, Asia and Africa will be a series of Summit Conferences in preparation of the one that will include Khrushchev.

This will be a new development in international relations, for what it will come to will be that the small powers will have local autonomy but no world decisions and that the Great Powers will determine all questions in their own interest. This is the way the world is moving—unpleasant as it may be.

Ike Should Call Jewish-Arab Conference On December Trip

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — If President Eisenhower would make one more stop on his forthcoming trip to the Middle East and Europe he might be able to accomplish a reconciliation as important as that between him and Khrushchev at Camp David.

A meeting between the top leaders of the Jewish and Arab worlds has never been held since Israel's independence in May 1948. The two peoples have armed border guards facing each other night and day. Near the spot where Christ was buried in Old Jerusalem, Arab soldiers pace the parapets overlooking the new city of Jerusalem. At a moment's notice they are ready to fire.

But this area where was proclaimed "peace on earth, good will to men" might be able to achieve that goal if President Eisenhower called for a face-to-face summit meeting between Jewish and Arab leaders.

Arab leaders would hesitate about accepting. But it would be hard to refuse to sit down with the President of the United States.

Phony TV Commercials

Here are more of the phony TV advertisements which have been getting by on the networks, though barred by newspapers. They illustrate "the massive cheating organized to defraud the American people," which Carl F. Hanson, Washington, D. C., superintendent of schools, and other educators have denounced.

Lestoil, a cleaning fluid manufactured by the Adell Chemical Company of Holyoke, Mass., has been using a series of TV commercials showing how its bottle sits on top of a stove or near a lighted candle, thus giving the impression that Lestoil is not inflammable and can be used safely near heat and fire. Unlike a newspaper advertisement, this impression is conveyed pictorially on TV without spelling the claim out in so many words.

Actually Lestoil has a dangerously low flash point and is a definite fire hazard. Yet here are some of the Lestoil TV commercials which have been fooling the American pocketbook just as TV quiz shows fooled the American mind:

A small boy cleans a test tube of his chemical set with Lestoil near a lighted candle, while the announcer says: "This is Jimmy, a budding young chemist in the Smith family, who has been experimenting with his mother's bottle of Lestoil, the all-purpose liquid detergent."

An open bottle of Lestoil rests on top of a radiator, while a housewife cleans the surrounding wall area. The audio declares: "Watch Lestoil clean away those finger marks and the ugly soot from the walls above radiators."

An open bottle of Lestoil sits on a stove. The audio announces: "Stove tops, front and back, shine when Lestoil removes unsightly dirt."

The Federal Trade Commission, showing more courage than the Federal Communications Commission, has now stepped in to ban all of the above commercials as "unfair and deceptive" because purchasers are not warned of the precautions necessary for home use, and because Lestoil "creates a definite fire hazard."

Rigged TV Music

Quiz shows are not the only things that are rigged on radio and television.

And now that CBS president Frank Stanton has called for an end to deception, the American Federation of Musicians is demanding an end to canned music made by foreign orchestras at cut rates, which are dubbed into American TV and radio shows for practically nothing. Meanwhile many American musicians are out of work.

"Does the new 'morality' include music?" asked Musicians Local 47 of Hollywood in a paid newspaper ad.

TV Funeral

Television cameramen grumbled last week because Speaker Sam Rayburn wouldn't let them televise their own big show.

Rayburn's orders barred them from the hearing room where the television industry was on trial for rigging quiz shows. As a result the cameramen set up their equipment in the corridor to catch witnesses on their way out. But the Congressmen smuggled one prize witness, orchestra leader Xavier Cugat, ont a side door to avoid the TV cameras.

Muttered one cameraman: "Rayburn won't even let us attend our own funeral."

How The Communists 'Liberated' China

By Joseph Alsop

HONG KONG

At dawn on September 3, a leaky sampan made a safe landfall in Hong Kong waters, after a breathless, all night sea voyage along the heavily patrolled coast of Communist China.

The little craft came from Chung Shan, one of the richer coastal farming districts, from a place I shall call the Wide River village. It brought a veteran farmer—let us christen him Lao Mok—his grown son, and four neighbors of the same clan.

I found Lao Mok and some of the others, and I got their story, with the help of an invaluable partner-reporter, Richard Wu of the "Hong Kong Standard." We tracked down Lao Mok in an old clothes shop, where he now thinks himself rich on a salary of twelve-and-a-half American dollars a month plus a pallet to sleep on and three rice meals a day provided by his boss.

Lao Mok is a wiry, pleasant faced Chinese who looks older than his age. He told his story quietly, in a matter of fact tone, with an occasional Chinese flash of humor or irony. You may find this story hard to credit, but bear in mind that it was independently confirmed. It is terrible, unadorned, and full of meaning.

Lao Mok was born forty-four years ago in Wide River village; and from that time until he slipped at dusk into the sampan, he hardly left this big farming community straggling along a fertile river bank. His father was a landless sharecropper; and when Lao Mok married at the age of twenty-seven, he too rented a few acres from one of the village landlords.

It was a hard life "in the old times"; for Lao Mok paid landlord Li half of his fields' two annual crops of rice. But he had a pig and a few chickens; he grew his own vegetables; and he had his little house and a few sticks of furniture.

"Even after the landlord's share and the rice we sold to buy cloth," said Lao Mok, "we had still rice enough and suchlike for poor people like us. Why, every day we would have bean curd, or a little fish, or sometimes meat, and once a month we would kill a chicken for a feast. And there was always oil for the vegetables too!"

China's long distintegration, and the Nationalists, and the Japanese, and a great World War, had all failed to make much change in Lao Mok's immemorial little world. But change began ten years ago when a Communist cadre appeared in Wide River village and told the people about the "victory of the revolution." After that the slogan, "Land to the Peasants," was carried into effect. Three of the local landlords, unloved men, were publicly executed after much commotion. And everything went on as before for a while.

The share of land given to Lao Mok and his wife was rather less than he had previously farmed. But after paying taxes and giving a little rice under the table to the former landowner's family (as was only proper between neighbors) Lao Mok was just a little better off after land reform. The next stage, when he and five of his neighbors were grouped in a mutual aid team, was not bad either. They built a small reservoir together, which made watering the fields a bit easier. Altogether, there was nothing to complain about at first except the Communist village-leader's distressing fondness for calling meetings and giving lectures.

"The first big trouble," said Lao Mok, with a wry grin, "was the collectivization, which we hoped would make us all rich."

Here he was speaking of the final collectivization in 1955. What he meant by "trouble" was a drop in his little family's rice-income from about 700 catties (or 770 pounds) per year down to 500 catties per year. Besides the loss of rice, there were acute shortages of cooking oil, meat, and fish. But they kept their pig, their chickens, and their plot for vegetables. So they "still managed somehow" although they sold a few possessions to get food in 1957.

Then came the "big meeting," said Lao Mok dramatically. It was in June, 1958, when the leader of their collective gathered them all together and told them how a kind of heaven on earth would be achieved by formation of a rural commune. After that all the land, all the tools, all the animals, and all the people—about 20,000 of them in all — were grouped together in the new Wide River commune.

The commune began with glowing promises and high hopes. Until the mess hall was built, the rice issue was generous; and in the first month in the mess-hall they "ate like the landlords in the old times," as Lao Mok put it. As long as this land of Cockaigne endured, they hardly minded being asked to work fifteen hours a day.

They rightly thought the back-yard steel furnace the commune built was a bad and bothersome joke. They were delighted when the commune leaders decided not to put everyone in barracks. They had a very low opinion of "Mister Mao's new farming methods," as Lao Mok ironically described the famous deep ploughing and close planting system. But the real bitterness did not well up until the rations were gradually cut to the starvation level.

First the mess-hall table was rapidly impoverished. Then, in the winter, dry rations began to be handed out, for home cooking. From March onwards Lao Mok and his son were each drawing no more than half a pound of dry rice a day. Lao Mok's wife, not being a "first category worker," got a little less than half a pound. Furthermore, this was nearly all they got. Meat, fish, bean curd, cooking oil, all were hardly more than dreams of the past. The vegetable plot had been communized of course; but "sometimes we ate wild herbs and leaves of trees."

It made no difference in the summer, when they were told they could again keep pigs and grow their vegetables. The ration did not rise. The work hours remained about twelve per day, with no rest day in the week. Few wartime prison camps, indeed, can have been such grim places as the Wide River commune this summer.

So Lao Mok and many of the other farmers decided they must make a break for freedom, and twenty sampans slipped down the river in darkness on the appointed night. Lao Mok thinks two of the others got to Macao. He does not know what happened to the rest of the little fleet.

"We could not go in a group, for they would have seen us," said Lao Mok. "And the man who knew the sea in our sampan chose to steer for Hong Kong, though it was further. We were the lucky ones. Now all I worry about is whether my wife gets the money I send her."

Such is Lao Mok's story — a standard and characteristic story of one of the thousands of Chinese peasant-refugees who have fled from the regime that "liberated them from the feudal past.

NEW CONVENTION BOSS—Apparently the Democrats are going to have to start looking for another personality to wield the gavel at their 1960 national convention. Sam Rayburn, venerable Speaker of the House, has virtually read himself out of the role he has played at the last three conventions.

He has done this by making himself the leader of a movement in Texas and elsewhere to win the Democratic presidential nomination for Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, his fellow Texan and Senate Democratic leader.

Tradition and practical politics call for an impartial chairman to conduct the conventions at which the two major parties pick their Presidential candidates. Sam would not want to besmirch his past record in this role any more than his rivals would want to see a partisan in the job.

After the 1956 convention in Chicago, Rayburn expressed a desire to step down from the highly-honored but fatiguing post. Apparently, he's made certain that he won't be drafted by backing Johnson.

But the Democrats will have to go a long way before they find a chairman as genial, fair and yet firm as the 77-year-old bachelor.

Sale Of Gold

By Leslie Gould

NEW YORK — The U.S. gold and international balance of payments positions have reached such a point that it is necessary for the International Monetary Fund to sell the U.S. Treasury $300 million in gold.

The Monetary Fund invested the $300 million it received in very short term U. S. Treasury notes. So it means little other than bookkeeping.

Never-the-less, it is galling to have the IMB — the brainchild of the discredited Harry Dexter White, who was part of a Soviet spy ring while in the U. S. Treasury — make this gesture.

The IMF sale of gold nearly matches the $343 million contribution in gold the U. S. had to make earlier this year to the Fund. Other countries also put in lesser amounts of gold, most of which they acquired from the U. S. This contributed to the run on America's gold holdings.

The latest figures placed U. S. gold stocks at $19 ½ billion compared to nearly $24 ½ billion ten years ago. So far this year the U. S. has lost a billion dollars in gold on top of $2 ¼ billion last year.

While the $19 ½ billion may still look big against this are the 25 per cent gold reserves the Federal Reserve banks must maintain by law against their combined banknote and deposit liabilities. Also, there are the foreign-owned short term dollar assets, including this $300 million purchase of short term Treasuries by the IMF.

The bank note and deposit liabilities of the Federal Reserve banks total nearly $46 ¾ billion, against which the Reserve must by law hold $11.6 billion in gold.

This leaves $7.9 billion of free gold to meet any demands from foreign sources.

The foreign-owned short term dollar assets, principally bank deposits and short term Treasury notes are around $15.7 billion. These are reduced by about $2 ½ billion of American short term claims against foreigners.

This brings the net foreign-owned dollar assets to around $13.2 billion. If settlement of this were to be demanded in gold, the U. S. wouldn't have it. Fortunately not all of that $13.2 billion is convertible into gold at the U. S. Treasury on demand.

The short term claims of foreigners against the U. S. have gone from nearly $6 billion 10 years ago to the $15.7 billion currently, while the U. S. gold stock has dropped from $24.4 billion to around $19 ½ billion.

Yet, this country has continued to spend and lend abroad as freely as it did when it was rescuing the economies of Europe. Military spending, military grants and other grants last year totaled $8 ½ billion against $4.7 billion ten years ago.

It Takes Patience To Cure Bedwetting

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Bedwetting (enuresis) usually is of emotional origin but it may be caused by organic disease or poor toilet training. It is unfair to the child to pin the blame on laziness or to wait for him to outgrow the habit.

The least the parents can do is to have the youngster's urine examined. It also helps to consider the problem on an individual basis and not use the same approach that helped a neighbor's boy or the daughter of a distant cousin.

Bladder control takes time to develop. The tot must learn to recognize the feeling of fullness and to control the muscles that guard the opening of the bladder. Each child proceeds at his own pace; some are dry during the day by age 2 and others at 3. To stay dry all night may take longer — up to 5 years of age.

Many small fry go through a long period of an occasional accident, especially when excited or upset. This must be appreciated because some parents expect too much from the boy or girl and become impatient when control is not achieved by age 3.

In the strict sense, the little one does not have enuresis unless regular wetting persists beyond age 5.

An emotional cause is suspected whenever the condition recurs after the family moves to another location or the youngster is away from the parents. The same can be said when the father or mother say the other children had the same problem, or either parent was enuretic years before.

Infection or a defect of the urinary tract is a likely cause when the youngster otherwise is well adjusted or has pelvic symptoms. A thorough examination is needed.

An attempt should be made to establish a conditioned reflex so that the boy awakens when the bladder is full. The parents should determine the approximate time bedwetting takes place and awaken Junior half an hour earlier and lead him to the bathroom.

This chore may take weeks but the parents must remain firm and calm. Don't give the child the impression that the plan is harder on you than on him. An electric awakening device is a good substitute in such cases.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send a leaflet on enuresis if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

TOMORROW: A disease that needs detective work.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Ike Should Call Jewish-Arab Conference On December Trip

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — If President Eisenhower would make one more stop on his forthcoming trip to the Middle East and Europe he might be able to accomplish a reconciliation as important as that between him and Khrushchev at Camp David.

A meeting between the top leaders of the Jewish and Arab worlds has never been held since Israel's independence in May 1948. The two peoples have armed border guards facing each other night and day. Near the spot where Christ was buried in Old Jerusalem, Arab soldiers pace the parapets overlooking the new city of Jerusalem. At a moment's notice they are ready to fire.

But this area where was proclaimed "peace on earth, good will to men" might be able to achieve that goal if President Eisenhower called for a face-to-face summit meeting between Jewish and Arab leaders.

Arab leaders would hesitate about accepting. But it would be hard to refuse to sit down with the President of the United States.

Phony TV Commercials

Here are more of the phony TV advertisements which have been getting by on the networks, though barred by newspapers. They illustrate "the massive cheating organized to defraud the American people," which Carl F. Hanson, Washington, D. C., superintendent of schools, and other educators have denounced.

Lestoil, a cleaning fluid manufactured by the Adell Chemical Company of Holyoke, Mass., has been using a series of TV commercials showing how its bottle sits on top of a stove or near a lighted candle, thus giving the impression that Lestoil is not inflammable and can be used safely near heat and fire. Unlike a newspaper advertisement, this impression is conveyed pictorially on TV without spelling the claim out in so many words.

Actually Lestoil has a dangerously low flash point and is a definite fire hazard. Yet here are some of the Lestoil TV commercials which have been fooling the American pocketbook just as TV quiz shows fooled the American mind:

A small boy cleans a test tube of his chemical set with Lestoil near a lighted candle, while the announcer says: "This is Jimmy, a budding young chemist in the Smith family, who has been experimenting with his mother's bottle of Lestoil, the all-purpose liquid detergent."

An open bottle of Lestoil rests on top of a radiator, while a housewife cleans the surrounding wall area. The audio declares: "Watch Lestoil clean away those finger marks and the ugly soot from the walls above radiators."

An open bottle of Lestoil sits on a stove. The audio announces: "Stove tops, front and back, shine when Lestoil removes unsightly dirt."

The Federal Trade Commission, showing more courage than the Federal Communications Commission, has now stepped in to ban all of the above commercials as "unfair and deceptive" because purchasers are not warned of the precautions necessary for home use, and because Lestoil "creates a definite fire hazard."

Rigged TV Music

Quiz shows are not the only things that are rigged on radio and television.

And now that CBS president Frank Stanton has called for an end to deception, the American Federation of Musicians is demanding an end to canned music made by foreign orchestras at cut rates, which are dubbed into American TV and radio shows for practically nothing. Meanwhile many American musicians are out of work.

"Does the new 'morality' include music?" asked Musicians Local 47 of Hollywood in a paid newspaper ad.

TV Funeral

Television cameramen grumbled last week because Speaker Sam Rayburn wouldn't let them televise their own big show.

Rayburn's orders barred them from the hearing room where the television industry was on trial for rigging quiz shows. As a result the cameramen set up their equipment in the corridor to catch witnesses on their way out. But the Congressmen smuggled one prize witness, orchestra leader Xavier Cugat, ont a side door to avoid the TV cameras.

Muttered one cameraman: "Rayburn won't even let us attend our own funeral."

How The Communists 'Liberated' China

By Joseph Alsop

HONG KONG

At dawn on September 3, a leaky sampan made a safe landfall in Hong Kong waters, after a breathless, all night sea voyage along the heavily patrolled coast of Communist China.

The little craft came from Chung Shan, one of the richer coastal farming districts, from a place I shall call the Wide River village. It brought a veteran farmer—let us christen him Lao Mok—his grown son, and four neighbors of the same clan.

I found Lao Mok and some of the others, and I got their story, with the help of an invaluable partner-reporter, Richard Wu of the "Hong Kong Standard." We tracked down Lao Mok in an old clothes shop, where he now thinks himself rich on a salary of twelve-and-a-half American dollars a month plus a pallet to sleep on and three rice meals a day provided by his boss.

Lao Mok is a wiry, pleasant faced Chinese who looks older than his age. He told his story quietly, in a matter of fact tone, with an occasional Chinese flash of humor or irony. You may find this story hard to credit, but bear in mind that it was independently confirmed. It is terrible, unadorned, and full of meaning.

Lao Mok was born forty-four years ago in Wide River village; and from that time until he slipped at dusk into the sampan, he hardly left this big farming community straggling along a fertile river bank. His father was a landless sharecropper; and when Lao Mok married at the age of twenty-seven, he too rented a few acres from one of the village landlords.

It was a hard life "in the old times"; for Lao Mok paid landlord Li half of his fields' two annual crops of rice. But he had a pig and a few chickens; he grew his own vegetables; and he had his little house and a few sticks of furniture.

"Even after the landlord's share and the rice we sold to buy cloth," said Lao Mok, "we had still rice enough and suchlike for poor people like us. Why, every day we would have bean curd, or a little fish, or sometimes meat, and once a month we would kill a chicken for a feast. And there was always oil for the vegetables too!"

China's long distintegration, and the Nationalists, and the Japanese, and a great World War, had all failed to make much change in Lao Mok's immemorial little world. But change began ten years ago when a Communist cadre appeared in Wide River village and told the people about the "victory of the revolution." After that the slogan, "Land to the Peasants," was carried into effect. Three of the local landlords, unloved men, were publicly executed after much commotion. And everything went on as before for a while.

The share of land given to Lao Mok and his wife was rather less than he had previously farmed. But after paying taxes and giving a little rice under the table to the former landowner's family (as was only proper between neighbors) Lao Mok was just a little better off after land reform. The next stage, when he and five of his neighbors were grouped in a mutual aid team, was not bad either. They built a small reservoir together, which made watering the fields a bit easier. Altogether, there was nothing to complain about at first except the Communist village-leader's distressing fondness for calling meetings and giving lectures.

"The first big trouble," said Lao Mok, with a wry grin, "was the collectivization, which we hoped would make us all rich."

Here he was speaking of the final collectivization in 1955. What he meant by "trouble" was a drop in his little family's rice-income from about 700 catties (or 770 pounds) per year down to 500 catties per year. Besides the loss of rice, there were acute shortages of cooking oil, meat, and fish. But they kept their pig, their chickens, and their plot for vegetables. So they "still managed somehow" although they sold a few possessions to get food in 1957.

Then came the "big meeting," said Lao Mok dramatically. It was in June, 1958, when the leader of their collective gathered them all together and told them how a kind of heaven on earth would be achieved by formation of a rural commune. After that all the land, all the tools, all the animals, and all the people—about 20,000 of them in all — were grouped together in the new Wide River commune.

The commune began with glowing promises and high hopes. Until the mess hall was built, the rice issue was generous; and in the first month in the mess-hall they "ate like the landlords in the old times," as Lao Mok put it. As long as this land of Cockaigne endured, they hardly minded being asked to work fifteen hours a day.

They rightly thought the backyard steel furnace the commune built was a bad and bothersome joke. They were delighted when the commune leaders decided not to put everyone in barracks. They had a very low opinion of "Mister Mao's new farming methods," as Lao Mok ironically described the famous deep ploughing and close planting system. But the real bitterness did not well up until the rations were gradually cut to the starvation level.

First the mess-hall table was rapidly impoverished. Then, in the winter, dry rations began to be handed out, for home cooking. From March onwards Lao Mok and his son were each drawing no more than half a pound of dry rice a day. Lao Mok's wife, not being a "first category worker," got a little less than half a pound. Furthermore, this was nearly all they got. Meat, fish, bean curd, cooking oil, all were hardly more than dreams of the past. The vegetable plot had been communized of course; but "sometimes we ate wild herbs and leaves of trees."

It made no difference in the summer, when they were told they could again keep pigs and grow their vegetables. The ration did not rise. The work hours remained about twelve per day, with no rest day in the week. Few wartime prison camps, indeed, can have been such grim places as the Wide River commune this summer.

So Lao Mok and many of the other farmers decided they must make a break for freedom, and twenty sampans slipped down the river in darkness on the appointed night. Lao Mok thinks two of the others got to Macao. He does not know what happened to the rest of the little fleet.

"We could not go in a group, for they would have seen us," said Lao Mok. "And the man who knew the sea in our sampan chose to steer for Hong Kong, though it was further. We were the lucky ones. Now all I worry about is whether my wife gets the money I send her."

Such is Lao Mok's story — a standard and characteristic story of one of the thousands of Chinese peasant-refugees who have fled from the regime that "liberated them from the feudal past.

NEW CONVENTION BOSS—Apparently the Democrats are going to have to start looking for another personality to wield the gavel at their 1960 national convention. Sam Rayburn, venerable Speaker of the House, has virtually read himself out of the role he has played at the last three conventions.

He has done this by making himself the leader of a movement in Texas and elsewhere to win the Democratic presidential nomination for Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, his fellow Texan and Senate Democratic leader.

Tradition and practical politics call for an impartial chairman to conduct the conventions at which the two major parties pick their Presidential candidates. Sam would not want to besmirch his past record in this role any more than his rivals would want to see a partisan in the job.

After the 1956 convention in Chicago, Rayburn expressed a desire to step down from the highly-honored but fatiguing post. Apparently, he's made certain that he won't be drafted by backing Johnson.

But the Democrats will have to go a long way before they find a chairman as genial, fair and yet firm as the 77-year-old bachelor.

Sale Of Gold

By Leslie Gould

NEW YORK — The U.S. gold and international balance of payments positions have reached such a point that it is necessary for the International Monetary Fund to sell the U.S. Treasury $300 million in gold.

The Monetary Fund invested the $300 million it received in very short term U. S. Treasury notes. So it means little other than bookkeeping.

Never-the-less, it is galling to have the IMB — the brainchild of the discredited Harry Dexter White, who was part of a Soviet spy ring while in the U. S. Treasury — make this gesture.

The IMF sale of gold nearly matches the $343 million contribution in gold the U. S. had to make earlier this year to the Fund. Other countries also put in lesser amounts of gold, most of which they acquired from the U. S. This contributed to the run on America's gold holdings.

The latest figures placed U. S. gold stocks at $19 ½ billion compared to nearly $24 ½ billion ten years ago. So far this year the U. S. has lost a billion dollars in gold on top of $2 ¼ billion last year.

While the $19 ½ billion may still look big against this are the 25 per cent gold reserves the Federal Reserve banks must maintain by law against their combined banknote and deposit liabilities. Also, there are the foreign-owned short term dollar assets, including this $300 million purchase of short term Treasuries by the IMF.

The bank note and deposit liabilities of the Federal Reserve banks total nearly $46 ¾ billion, against which the Reserve must by law hold $11.6 billion in gold.

This leaves $7.9 billion of free gold to meet any demands from foreign sources.

The foreign-owned short term dollar assets, principally bank deposits and short term Treasury notes are around $15.7 billion. These are reduced by about $2 ½ billion of American short term claims against foreigners.

This brings the net foreign-owned dollar assets to around $13.2 billion. If settlement of this were to be demanded in gold, the U. S. wouldn't have it. Fortunately not all of that $13.2 billion is convertible into gold at the U. S. Treasury on demand.

The short term claims of foreigners against the U. S. have gone from nearly $6 billion 10 years ago to the $15.7 billion currently, while the U. S. gold stock has dropped from $24.4 billion to around $19 ½ billion.

Yet, this country has continued to spend and lend abroad as freely as it did when it was rescuing the economies of Europe. Military spending, military grants and other grants last year totaled $8 ½ billion against $4.7 billion ten years ago.

It Takes Patience To Cure Bedwetting

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Bedwetting (enuresis) usually is of emotional origin but it may be caused by organic disease or poor toilet training. It is unfair to the child to pin the blame on laziness or to wait for him to outgrow the habit.

The least the parents can do is to have the youngster's urine examined. It also helps to consider the problem on an individual basis and not use the same approach that helped a neighbor's boy or the daughter of a distant cousin.

Bladder control takes time to develop. The tot must learn to recognize the feeling of fullness and to control the muscles that guard the opening of the bladder. Each child proceeds at his own pace; some are dry during the day by age 2 and others at 3. To stay dry all night may take longer — up to 5 years of age.

Many small fry go through a long period of an occasional accident, especially when excited or upset. This must be appreciated because some parents expect too much from the boy or girl and become impatient when control is not achieved by age 3.

In the strict sense, the little one does not have enuresis unless regular wetting persists beyond age 5.

An emotional cause is suspected whenever the condition recurs after the family moves to another location or the youngster is away from the parents. The same can be said when the father or mother say the other children had the same problem, or either parent was enuretic years before.

Infection or a defect of the urinary tract is a likely cause when the youngster otherwise is well adjusted or has pelvic symptoms. A thorough examination is needed.

An attempt should be made to establish a conditioned reflex so that the boy awakens when the bladder is full. The parents should determine the approximate time bedwetting takes place and awaken Junior half an hour earlier and lead him to the bathroom.

This chore may take weeks but the parents must remain firm and calm. Don't give the child the impression that the plan is harder on you than on him. An electric awakening device is a good substitute in such cases.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send a leaflet on enuresis if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

TOMORROW: A disease that needs detective work.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

You're Telling Me!

By William Ritt

Senator Kennedy is mending his fences all around country for the Democratic nomination next summer. Senator Kefauver did that in 1956 and all he wound up with was the gate.

Word is that Senator Kennedy won't accept second place next summer. Maybe next fall, but not next summer.

Senator Kennedy tried for second place in 1956 and didn't get it. With that sound experience behind him, maybe he's ready to not get first place.

The vice presidency has been built up to considerable significance by President Eisenhower. If not the vice presidency, the vice president.

Nixon probably has been the most active second-place man in our history. Anyhow, the most active since Sherman Adams.

Compared to the presidency, the vice presidency is a cinch. Either you're right or you couldn't help it.

Senator Keating says it might pay to have a national survey of the quality of college teaching. Well, no doubt the teachers themselves are for anything that might pay.

"Never was there a greater time, a more glorious time, to become a school teacher," says Senator Keating. Teachers, however, are getting tired of eating his words.

Senator Kennedy says the American people want an administration with "new ideas, new action and new faces." New England face, for instance.

Keyser High Shoots For 32nd Straight PVC Win Today

Tornado Will Host Berkeley Springs High

Needs Win To Tie For League Title; Game Set For 1:30

Keyser High School, recognized as one of the leading contenders for the West Virginia Class AA football championship, will be shooting for its thirty-second consecutive victory in the Potomac Valley Conference when it hosts the Berkeley Springs High School Indians today at 1:30 p. m., at Stayman Field.

Today will be observed as Parents' Day with the parents of players, managers, cheerleaders and sports writers attending as guests of the school.

It's the final game of the season for Keyser in the P.V.C. and Coach Fred Clark's Golden Tornado will be aiming to windup with a 7-0 mark in the 11-school circuit.

Keyser (5-0) shared the PVC title with West Virginia School for the Deaf (4-0) last season. A victory for Keyser today would tie the same schools for the championship the second straight season. The Romney eleven has closed its conference schedule with 4-0.

Keyser 8-0 This Year

The Clarkmen have reeled off eight straight wins this season and have games left with Berkeley Springs and Charles Town (8-0) on November 20 at Keyser. Since its last defeat at the hands of Allegany High last year, Keyser has chalked up 13 victories in a row and scored ten shutouts.

Keyser has beaten Beall 38-0, Ridgeley 27-6, Allegany 13-0, LaSalle 8-0, Moorefield 20-6, Southern 20-0, Petersburg 12-0 and Romney 32-0 this season.

Coach Allen Goldstrom's Indians will be meeting Keyser for the first time in a P.V.C. game. The Morgan Countians come to Keyser with a 1-8 record and their only win was over Ridgeley (7-6), a team KHS whipped by three touchdowns. Berkeley's losses were to Romney 34-0, Hancock 8-6, Clarke County (Berryville, Va.) 38-12, Harpers Ferry 21-13, Shepherdstown 19-6, Charles Town 53-13, Moorefield 33-6 and Musselman 20-13.

Officials Are Named

John Angellatta, John Diamond and Jake Michaels will officiate in today's game.

Officials named for games this weekend are as follows:

Friday, Nov. 13:

Altoona Catholic at LaSalle — John Shelton, Bob Pence, George Lovenstein and Larry Geiger.

Saturday, Nov. 14:

Romney at Allegany — John J. Cavanaugh, William Orndorff, John Shelton and Hubert Feeney.

Beall at Moorefield — Jim Gaffney, William Orndorff and George Lovenstein.

Stoneham Opposes New League Team In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—President Horace Stoneham of the San Francisco Giants indicated Monday that he would fight any attempt by the Continental League to bring a franchise to this city.

"I am surprised by the suggested interest of the Continental League in the San Francisco area," Stoneham said in a prepared statement. "It was my understanding that the proposed new league was interested in bringing major league baseball to new territories other than New York.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported Monday morning that Frank Moreland, a Los Angeles advertising executive, was in town talking with "seven men representing old line first families of San Francisco" who were interested in bringing another major league franchise here.

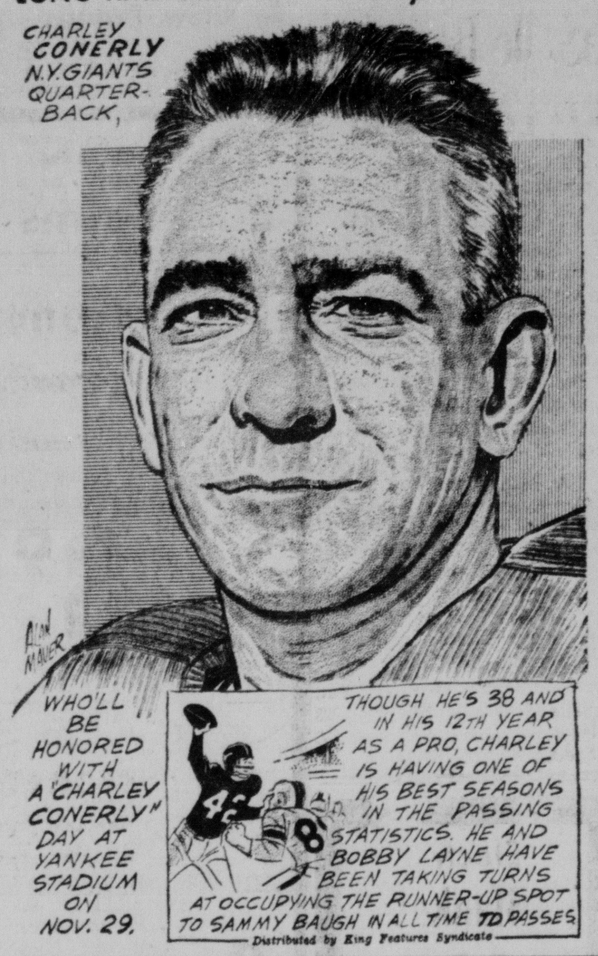
Local Moose Pinmen Score At Uniontown

Bowlers of Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, defeated the Uniontown Lodge of Moose in a match rolled Saturday at Uniontown, Pa., by the margin of 11 pins.

The scores of the five high bowlers on each side made up the final totals.

Art Gellner paced the Cumberland pin spillers with a set of 472. Francis Becker led Uniontown with a 426.

LONG-TIME STAR - - - - By Alan Maver



The Sports Patrol

By STEVE SNIDER
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — When they first checked in it was odds-on they wouldn't last two seasons.

Yet today, Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees and Walt Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers are the "deans" among managers in their respective major leagues. Casey will come up for his 12th year in 1960 and Walt will start his seventh.

In an era of highly expendable managers—10 have been fired in the last two years alone—Stengel and Alston rate as "phenoms." And nothing in the baseball world figured less.

The Yankees introduced Stengel as their 1949 manager at a shindig in a swanky New York cafe. Most of the newspapermen present were old hands who recalled Casey's second division struggles at Brooklyn and with the old Boston National Leaguers.

The feeling was that "Casey the Clown" was in over his head with the more or less sedate and demanding Yankees who had gone strictly first class from Babe Ruth to Joe DiMaggio.

Proves Sound Choice

General Manager George Weiss of the Yankees, backed up by co-owner Del Webb, thought otherwise. And as Casey has proved since—he failed only twice to win a pennant—the choice couldn't have been better.

When Alston's name was popped at a Brooklyn press conference first reaction was "who's he?"

The best anyone could say was that Walt was an "organization man" and that, as a St. Louis Cardinal, he had struck out in his only time at bat as a big leaguer.

President Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers said, "Walt will be with us a long time." A lot of guys wanted to bet O'Malley right on the spot.

Alston's days in Brooklyn were stormy, particularly since his predecessor, Chuck Dressen, was a popular figure, but he survived and moved with the club to Los Angeles.

Pennant Saves Job

He was reported on the way out in '58 as the Dodgers were floundering in a campaign they eventually finished only one notch out of the cellar. It's also probable the only thing that saved his job in '59 was winning the pennant—and the World Series.

But many a head has rolled since those two took over.

Stengel's first American League rivals were Zach Taylor of the St. Louis Browns, Joe McCarthy of the Red Sox, Lou Boudreau of the Indians, Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics, Joe Kuhel of the Senators, Jack Onslow of the White Sox and Red Rolfe of the Tigers.

That sounds so long, long ago. And in the life of a major league manager it actually is.

Alston's rival managers in his first race (1954) were Leo Durocher of the Giants, Steve O'Neill of the Phillies, Fred Haney of the Pirates, Eddie Stanky of the Cardinals, Charley Grimm of the Braves, Stan Hack of the Cubs and Birdie Tebbetts of the Reds. Only Grimm, back with the Cubs, still is managing in the big time.

Regional Deer Kill For Six Days Of Bow Season Is Only Five

Only five deer were reported killed during the opening of the 12-day bow season in Maryland Region No. 1, comprising Garrett, Washington and Allegany counties, according to reports received by Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden.

Two deer were slain in Garrett county, two in Allegany and one in Washington during the six-day period ending Saturday.

The season draws to a close Saturday, Nov. 14.

Last year 29 deer were bagged by archers in the three counties during the special season—10 in Allegany, 10 in Washington and nine in Garrett.

Twelve Slated To Go Postward In Laurel Race

Aggressor's Trainer Is Rooting For Rain

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Aggressor, England's hope for a second victory in the Washington D.C. International, favors a soft track but it doesn't seem the weatherman will cooperate.

The early forecast for the eighth running of the invitational $100,000 classic Wednesday is continued good weather, which would assure a firm track.

Twelve horses from nine nations will meet in the colorful global gallop, and most of them were out on the new one mile infield grass course Monday morning for light drills.

"We are rooting for rain," said John Gosden of England, trainer of Aggressor.

American-owned but British-bred Tudor Era, the 6-year-old grass specialist who finished first in the 1958 International but was disqualified, is the early 8-5 favorite. The track was firm last year, but Tudor Era won a division of the Man O'War Handicap on a soft track at Aqueduct recently.

However, being chosen favorite in this 1½ mile race has put the kiss of death on a horse's chances for the $70,000 first prize. All seven previous favorites have lost.

Baltimore May Lose Navy Grid Contests

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Major college football in Baltimore may have been dealt a death blow with Saturday night's slim turnout — 21,000 — for the Navy-Maryland rivalry.

Capt. Asbury (Red) Coward, Navy's director of athletics, said Monday he will "strongly recommend" the two schools play future games on home grounds. He said he also saw nothing to change his previous opinion that Navy should pull out of the city entirely.

ABC To Air Game

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Broadcasting Company announced Monday it will carry Saturday's Notre Dame-Pittsburgh football game on its national radio network, beginning at 1:20 P.M., EST.

61,700 To See Sooners Battle Army Saturday

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Coach Bud Wilkinson told a news conference Monday he thought it was a fine thing for his Oklahoma football team to be playing Army but added quickly, "we probably won't feel that way Saturday night."

The Sooners and the Cadets meet at Owen Field Saturday and already the game is sold out for a crowd of 61,700.

"The purpose of competition is to play teams who know what they're doing," Wilkinson said, "and Army is one of those teams."

Asked if he thought it would be a pretty even game, Wilkinson replied:

"I don't really know but if a team gets going it can beat anybody badly. We haven't been an explosive club and Army plays real well."

TEAMMATES NOW—Two of the major leagues' most glamorous players in their day, Peewee Reese (left), formerly of the Dodgers, and Dizzy Dean, former star pitcher of the Cards and Cubs, are now teammates — before the mike. Reese, who has been a Dodger coach, will pair up with Dean for major league broadcasts. Reese replaces Buddy Blattner.

Syracuse Appears Headed For Orange, Cotton Bowl

Officials Are Not Talking; Met Navy In Oyster Bowl

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Syracuse football coach, Ben Schwartzwalder, had a ready answer Monday when New York football writers asked him about a bowl game.

"We've already had our bowl," he said, pausing briefly — "The Oyster Bowl. (Syracuse played Navy at Norfolk, Va., last month in a regularly scheduled game called the Oyster Bowl).

"Seriously, we've had enough hexes already," he added. "That is the department of Mr. Lew Andreas, our athletic director. I think Lew will talk to anybody about anything. I am just the football coach. Anybody Lew schedules we will play. I think Lew is ready to do business with the right folks."

Val Pinchbeck, Syracuse sports publicity director, said Andreas told him in Syracuse he had received no formal offers. However, the university's athletic advisory board meets Tuesday. An invitation might be received in time to be considered at that meeting.

The final decision, of course, will be made by Chancellor William Tolley. It is understood the players had an informal discussion of the bowl situation after Saturday's 20-18 victory over Penn State.

In the absence of any official word, it appeared Syracuse, fourth-ranked a week ago and headed for a promotion, probably was destined for either the Orange Bowl in Miami or the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

Schwartzwalder outlined the basic offense of his team that has won seven straight.

"The ride series is the heart of our offense," he said. "The quarterback has three options. He sticks the ball in the fullback's stomach and looks to the defensive end. Depending on what he sees, he leaves it there or takes it back. If he keeps, he might pitch out.

"We are the only ones dumb enough to try something like this. We stuck with it although we had our doubts. It began to pay off against Pittsburgh. The last two games our ride series was back where we hoped it would be last spring."

Fort Hill Jayvees Wallop Allegany In Finale, 32-0

Sweep City Games, End 2nd Straight Season Unbeaten

Fort Hill High School's junior varsity football team completed its second straight undefeated season yesterday when it crushed the Little Campers of Allegany High School at the stadium by the score of 32-0.

Coach John Frank's team grabbed city jayvee honors for the season, having beaten LaSalle, 33-0, in an earlier contest.

The Little Sentinels were 8-0 last season and their record for the current campaign is 6-0-1. Keyser tied Fort Hill in the opening game, 6-6. Then the Hilltoppers reeled off six wins in a row at the expense of Ridgeley 22-0, Romney 21-0, Keyser 26-7, Beall 33-6, LaSalle and Allegany. The champs rolled up a total of 173 points while yielding only three touchdowns and 19 points.

Fort Hill has blanked Allegany three years in a row, winning the 1958 game 33-0 and the 1957 contest 6-0.

Frank is head coach of the Little Sentinels for the third straight season. His assistant this year is Ed Dawson. Fort Hill is undefeated in 17 consecutive games, including the last two of the 1957 season.

Roy Collins accounted for two of Fort Hill's five touchdowns yesterday, both coming in the second quarter. He went five yards off tackle for the first one and went over from the eight on the second.

Keyser High Shoots For 32nd Straight PVC Win Today

Tornado Will Host Berkeley Springs High

Needs Win To Tie For League Title; Game Set For 1:30

Keyser High School, recognized as one of the leading contenders for the West Virginia Class AA football championship, will be shooting for its thirty-second consecutive victory in the Potomac Valley Conference when it hosts the Berkeley Springs High School Indians today at 1:30 p. m., at Stayman Field.

Today will be observed as Parents' Day with the parents of players, managers, cheerleaders and sports writers attending as guests of the school.

It's the final game of the season for Keyser in the P.V.C. and Coach Fred Clark's Golden Tornado will be aiming to windup with a 7-0 mark in the 11-school circuit.

Keyser (5-0) shared the PVC title with West Virginia School for the Deaf (4-0) last season. A victory for Keyser today would tie the same schools for the championship the second straight season. The Romney eleven has closed its conference schedule with 4-0.

Keyser 8-0 This Year

The Clarkmen have reeled off eight straight wins this season and have games left with Berkeley Springs and Charles Town (8-0) on November 20 at Keyser. Since its last defeat at the hands of Allegany High last year, Keyser has chalked up 13 victories in a row and scored ten shutouts.

Keyser has beaten Beall 38-0, Ridgeley 27-6, Allegany 13-0, LaSalle 8-0, Moorefield 20-6, Southern 20-0, Petersburg 12-0 and Romney 32-0 this season.

Coach Allen Goldstrom's Indians will be meeting Keyser for the first time in a P.V.C. game. The Morgan Countians come to Keyser with a 1-8 record and their only win was over Ridgeley (7-6), a team KHS whipped by three touchdowns. Berkeley's losses were to Romney 34-0, Hancock 8-6, Clarke County (Berryville, Va.) 38-12, Harpers Ferry 21-13, Shepherdstown 19-6, Charles Town 53-13, Moorefield 33-6 and Musselman 20-13.

Officials Are Named

John Angellatta, John Diamond and Jake Michaels will officiate in today's game.

Officials named for games this weekend are as follows:

Friday, Nov. 13:

Altoona Catholic at LaSalle — John Shelton, Bob Pence, George Lovenstein and Larry Geiger.

Saturday, Nov. 14:

Romney at Allegany — John J. Cavanaugh, William Orndorff, John Shelton and Hubert Feeney.

Beall at Moorefield — Jim Gaffney, William Orndorff and George Lovenstein.

Stoneham Opposes New League Team In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—President Horace Stoneham of the San Francisco Giants indicated Monday that he would fight any attempt by the Continental League to bring a franchise to this city.

"I am surprised by the suggested interest of the Continental League in the San Francisco area," Stoneham said in a prepared statement. "It was my understanding that the proposed new league was interested in bringing major league baseball to new territories other than New York.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported Monday morning that Frank Moreland, a Los Angeles advertising executive, was in town talking with "seven men representing old line first families of San Francisco" who were interested in bringing another major league franchise here.

Local Moose Pinmen Score At Uniontown

Bowlers of Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, defeated the Uniontown Lodge of Moose in a match rolled Saturday at Uniontown, Pa., by the margin of 11 pins.

The scores of the five high bowlers on each side made up the final totals.

Art Gellner paced the Cumberland pin spillers with a set of 472. Francis Becker led Uniontown with a 426.

LONG-TIME STAR - - - - By Alan Maver

The Sports Patrol

By STEVE SNIDER
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — When they first checked in it was odds-on they wouldn't last two seasons.

Yet today, Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees and Walt Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers are the "deans" among managers in their respective major leagues. Casey will come up for his 12th year in 1960 and Walt will start his seventh.

In an era of highly expendable managers—10 have been fired in the last two years alone—Stengel and Alston rate as "phenoms." And nothing in the baseball world figured less.

The Yankees introduced Stengel as their 1949 manager at a shindig in a swanky New York cafe. Most of the newspapermen present were old hands who recalled Casey's second division struggles at Brooklyn and with the old Boston National Leaguers.

The feeling was that "Casey the Clown" was in over his head with the more or less sedate and demanding Yankees who had gone strictly first class from Babe Ruth to Joe DiMaggio.

Proves Sound Choice

General Manager George Weiss of the Yankees, backed up by co-owner Del Webb, thought otherwise. And as Casey has proved since—he failed only twice to win a pennant—the choice couldn't have been better.

When Alston's name was popped at a Brooklyn press conference first reaction was "who's he?"

The best anyone could say was that Walt was an "organization man" and that, as a St. Louis Cardinal, he had struck out in his only time at bat as a big leaguer.

President Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers said, "Walt will be with us a long time." A lot of guys wanted to bet O'Malley right on the spot.

Alston's days in Brooklyn were stormy, particularly since his predecessor, Chuck Dressen, was a popular figure, but he survived and moved with the club to Los Angeles.

Pennant Saves Job

He was reported on the way out in '58 as the Dodgers were floundering in a campaign they eventually finished only one notch out of the cellar. It's also probable the only thing that saved his job in '59 was winning the pennant—and the World Series.

But many a head has rolled since those two took over.

Stengel's first American League rivals were Zach Taylor of the St. Louis Browns, Joe McCarthy of the Red Sox, Lou Boudreau of the Indians, Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics, Joe Kuhel of the Senators, Jack Onslow of the White Sox and Red Rolfe of the Tigers.

That sounds so long, long ago. And in the life of a major league manager it actually is.

Alston's rival managers in his first race (1954) were Leo Durocher of the Giants, Steve O'Neill of the Phillies, Fred Haney of the Pirates, Eddie Stanky of the Cardinals, Charley Grimm of the Braves, Stan Hack of the Cubs and Birdie Tebbetts of the Reds. Only Grimm, back with the Cubs, still is managing in the big time.

Regional Deer Kill For Six Days Of Bow Season Is Only Five

Only five deer were reported killed during the opening of the 12-day bow season in Maryland Region No. 1, comprising Garrett, Washington and Allegany counties, according to reports received by Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden.

Two deer were slain in Garrett county, two in Allegany and one in Washington during the six-day period ending Saturday.

The season draws to a close Saturday, Nov. 14.

Last year 29 deer were bagged by archers in the three counties during the special season—10 in Allegany, 10 in Washington and nine in Garrett.

Twelve Slated To Go Postward In Laurel Race

Aggressor's Trainer Is Rooting For Rain

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Aggressor, England's hope for a second victory in the Washington D.C. International, favors a soft track but it doesn't seem the weatherman will cooperate.

The early forecast for the eighth running of the invitational $100,000 classic Wednesday is continued good weather, which would assure a firm track.

Twelve horses from nine nations will meet in the colorful global gallop, and most of them were out on the new one mile infield grass course Monday morning for light drills.

"We are rooting for rain," said John Gosden of England, trainer of Aggressor.

American-owned but British-bred Tudor Era, the 6-year-old grass specialist who finished first in the 1958 International but was disqualified, is the early 8-5 favorite. The track was firm last year, but Tudor Era won a division of the Man O'War Handicap on a soft track at Aqueduct recently.

However, being chosen favorite in this 1½ mile race has put the kiss of death on a horse's chances for the $70,000 first prize. All seven previous favorites have lost.

Baltimore May Lose Navy Grid Contests

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Major college football in Baltimore may have been dealt a death blow with Saturday night's slim turnout — 21,000 — for the Navy-Maryland rivalry.

Capt. Asbury (Red) Coward, Navy's director of athletics, said Monday he will "strongly recommend" the two schools play future games on home grounds. He said he also saw nothing to change his previous opinion that Navy should pull out of the city entirely.

ABC To Air Game

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Broadcasting Company announced Monday it will carry Saturday's Notre Dame-Pittsburgh football game on its national radio network, beginning at 1:20 P.M., EST.

61,700 To See Sooners Battle Army Saturday

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Coach Bud Wilkinson told a news conference Monday he thought it was a fine thing for his Oklahoma football team to be playing Army but added quickly, "we probably won't feel that way Saturday night."

The Sooners and the Cadets meet at Owen Field Saturday and already the game is sold out for a crowd of 61,700.

"The purpose of competition is to play teams who know what they're doing," Wilkinson said, "and Army is one of those teams."

Asked if he thought it would be a pretty even game, Wilkinson replied:

"I don't really know but if a team gets going it can beat anybody badly. We haven't been an explosive club and Army plays real well."

TEAMMATES NOW—Two of the major leagues' most glamorous players in their day, Peewee Reese (left), formerly of the Dodgers, and Dizzy Dean, former star pitcher of the Cards and Cubs, are now teammates — before the mike. Reese, who has been a Dodger coach, will pair up with Dean for major league broadcasts. Reese replaces Buddy Blattner.

Syracuse Appears Headed For Orange, Cotton Bowl

Officials Are Not Talking; Met Navy In Oyster Bowl

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Syracuse football coach, Ben Schwartzwalder, had a ready answer Monday when New York football writers asked him about a bowl game.

"We've already had our bowl," he said, pausing briefly — "The Oyster Bowl. (Syracuse played Navy at Norfolk, Va., last month in a regularly scheduled game called the Oyster Bowl).

"Seriously, we've had enough hexes already," he added. "That is the department of Mr. Lew Andreas, our athletic director. I think Lew will talk to anybody about anything. I am just the football coach. Anybody Lew schedules we will play. I think Lew is ready to do business with the right folks."

Val Pinchbeck, Syracuse sports publicity director, said Andreas told him in Syracuse he had received no formal offers. However, the university's athletic advisory board meets Tuesday. An invitation might be received in time to be considered at that meeting.

The final decision, of course, will be made by Chancellor William Tolley. It is understood the players had an informal discussion of the bowl situation after Saturday's 20-18 victory over Penn State.

In the absence of any official word, it appeared Syracuse, fourth-ranked a week ago and headed for a promotion, probably was destined for either the Orange Bowl in Miami or the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

Schwartzwalder outlined the basic offense of his team that has won seven straight.

"The ride series is the heart of our offense," he said. "The quarterback has three options. He sticks the ball in the fullback's stomach and looks to the defensive end. Depending on what he sees, he leaves it there or takes it back. If he keeps, he might pitch out.

"We are the only ones dumb enough to try something like this. We stuck with it although we had our doubts. It began to pay off against Pittsburgh. The last two games our ride series was back where we hoped it would be last spring."

Syracuse, Texas, Southern Cal Are 1-2-3 In UPI Ratings

LSU Tumbles From Top To Fourth Place

Northwestern 6th, Tennessee Takes Over Tenth Spot

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press International

NEW YORK —Syracuse, a survivor of the upset wave that cost Louisiana State and Northwestern their perfect records, Monday replaced LSU as the No. 1 team in the United Press International's major college football ratings.

Texas and Southern California, two other unbeaten-untied teams that escaped uprisings by the underdogs against highly ranked clubs Saturday, moved into the 2-3 positions.

Syracuse's 20-18 victory over Penn State, combined with Louisiana State's one-point loss to Tennessee and Northwestern's defeat by Wisconsin, enabled it to take over first place for the first time since the ratings were inaugurated in 1950.

LSU Slips To Fourth

LSU slipped to fourth while Wisconsin advanced from eighth to fifth. Northwestern dropped from second to sixth. Mississippi, Auburn, Penn State and Tennessee completed the top 10 in that order. Tennessee was the only newcomer in the select group, replacing Washington.

Clemson was 11th. It was followed in order by Georgia, Washington, Georgia Tech, Oregon, Iowa, Michigan State, Arkansas, North Texas State and Texas and Texas Christian. No other schools were mentioned on this week's ballots.

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder's Syracuse team received 19 first-place votes and a total of 319 points in balloting by the 35 leading coaches who rate the teams weekly for UPI. Texas, a one-point winner over Baylor Saturday, was close behind with nine first-place votes and 310 points.

Southern Teams High

Southern California drew four first-place votes and 242 points. LSU, which topped the ratings the last four weeks of the 1958 season and the first seven weeks of the current campaign while building a 19-game winning streak, received 203 points. LSU did not receive a first-place vote.

Wisconsin received the other three first-place votes and 187 points. Northwestern received 159 points. Mississippi 147, Auburn 82, Penn State 75 and Tennessee 71.

Syracuse (7-0) is the first eastern school other than Army ever to lead the UPI weekly ratings. Army last held the No. 1 spot Oct. 21,1958.

This week's top 10 was made up of four teams from the South, two each from the East and Midwest, one from the Southwest and one from the Far West. Besides Syracuse, Texas (8-0) and Southern California (7-0) are the only other teams in the select group with perfect records.

Mt. Savage's 7th Season Is Best In Soccer League

Play Aggies Today In Final; Scoring Race Is Close One

ORANGE COACH — Ben Schwartzwalder, coach of Syracuse University's undefeated football team, the powerful Orange, is shown at yesterday's meeting of the Football Writers' Association of New York. His team, No. 4 in the AP poll last week appears headed upward following losses suffered Saturday by Louisana State, No. 1, and Northwestern, No. 2. (AP Photofax)

Coach John Thomas' Mt. Savage High School Indians will lower the curtain on their most successful season in the W.M.I. Soccer League when they tackle the Flintstone High School Aggies today at Mt. Savage.

Win, lose or tie, this will be Mt. Savage's best season since it came into the league in 1953.

Six years ago Mt. Savage won three and lost five for its best previous mark. The present team own a 3-2-2 record and is tied with Bruce and Beall for second place, each school having eight points in the standings.

A win or a tie will enable the Indians to gain sole possession of second place, the highest position in which the booters of that school ever have finished in seven years of competition. A Mt. Savage defeat would leave three schools tied as they are now for the runner-up position.

Valley High won the championship with a 5-1-2 record and 12 points.

Mt. Savage won the series opener from Flintstone by the score of 6-2.

Dale Holt, of Mt. Savage, is running second in the race for the individual scoring title in the league and must garner two goals today to catch Jim Duncan, of Beall, the pacesetter. Duncan has nine tallies and Holt seven. Tied for third place are Leroy Morris, Mt. Savage; Jim Pollock, Valley, and Reed Clingerman, of Flintstone, at six points each. Holt, Morris and Clingerman will see action in the league's final game of the year.

Here's how Mt. Savage teams have fared since the school entered the county high school soccer league:

*1959	3	2	2
1958	0	6	2
1957	1	6	0
1956	0	6	2

Voting For Playoff Results In 8-8 Tie

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — State College conference members failed Monday to reach agreement on whether a playoff between eastern and western division football leaders should be held this fall.

Executive secretary George Springer said a second vote on whether a playoff should be held ended in an 8-8 tie with one school abstaining.

Springer said conference president Dr. John Pence of Fairmont noting there was some interest in the title game directed a special committee named last spring to discuss the matter with representatives of Fairmont and Salem Colleges — the division leaders—and determine if such a game should be staged.

Syracuse Heads Lambert Voting

Orange Unanimous Choice For Trophy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Syracuse which defeated Penn State, 20-18, last Saturday, was the unanimous first-place choice for the fourth straight week Monday in the balloting for the Lambert Trophy, emblematic of the East's major college football championship.

The Orangemen got all eight first-place votes of the coaches, writers and broadcasters who make up the rating board.

Syracuse has three games left to play — Colgate, Boston University and U.C.L.A. The upstate New York team has won all seven of its games thus far, four over Lambert trophy contenders —Navy, Holy Cross, Pitt and Penn State.

Penn State (7-1) remains the unanimous choice for the No. 2 spot this week despite its loss to Syracuse, while Army (4-2-1) retains its third spot. Pitt (4-4), however, made the biggest jump of the week, moving from sixth to fourth off a 22-14 victory over Boston College, fourth last week.

Rounding out the top 10 are Navy (3-4-1), Holy Cross (6-1) Boston College (4-3), Penn (5-1-1), Boston U. (3-4) and Dartmouth (3-3-1). Navy and Holy Cross are tied for fifth.

Alouettes Fire Peahead Walker

MONTREAL (UPI) — Douglas (Peahead) Walker, dean of Canadian professional football coaches, Monday was fired by the Montreal Alouettes after eight seasons at the helm of the Big Four club.

The announcement came from Walker himself after a morning meeting with club President Ted Workman.

Workman, who said Walker must step down in the interests of "progress," offered Walker alternative employment "within the framework of our development program." Walker, who has one year to go on a three-year contract at a reported $17,500 said "I have not entirely rejected the offer . . . It was only brought up this morning."

The gray-haired veteran who was head coach six years at Elon College, 14 years at Wake Forest and an assistant at Yale under the late Herman Hickman for one year before coming to Canada, was perhaps more affable than usual as he discussed the situation with newsmen.

"There's nothing much to say," Walker said. "I was just fired, that's all. I have not made up my mind yet what I will do . . . It's too early to say."

Dukes Ends Holdout, Will Join Pistons

DETROIT (UPI) — Walter Dukes ended his holiday Monday and signed a 1959-60 contract with the Detroit Pistons.

Dukes, a 29 year old seven-footer, missed Detroit's first eight games this season in a dispute over pay. The Pistons had offered the former Seton Hall star a "modest" pay increase but he was asking an additional $2,500.

General Manager Nick Kerbawy said Dukes would join the Pistons for Tuesday night's game with the Boston Celtics at St. Louis. The Pistons lost five of the eight games they played without Dukes.

Syracuse, Texas, Southern Cal Are 1-2-3 In UPI Ratings

LSU Tumbles From Top To Fourth Place

Northwestern 6th, Tennessee Takes Over Tenth Spot

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press International

NEW YORK —Syracuse, a survivor of the upset wave that cost Louisiana State and Northwestern their perfect records, Monday replaced LSU as the No. 1 team in the United Press International's major college football ratings.

Texas and Southern California, two other unbeaten-untied teams that escaped uprisings by the underdogs against highly ranked clubs Saturday, moved into the 2-3 positions.

Syracuse's 20-18 victory over Penn State, combined with Louisiana State's one-point loss to Tennessee and Northwestern's defeat by Wisconsin, enabled it to take over first place for the first time since the ratings were inaugurated in 1950.

LSU Slips To Fourth

LSU slipped to fourth while Wisconsin advanced from eighth to fifth. Northwestern dropped from second to sixth. Mississippi, Auburn, Penn State and Tennessee completed the top 10 in that order. Tennessee was the only newcomer in the select group, replacing Washington.

Clemson was 11th. It was followed in order by Georgia, Washington, Georgia Tech, Oregon, Iowa, Michigan State, Arkansas, North Texas State and Texas and Texas Christian. No other schools were mentioned on this week's ballots.

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder's Syracuse team received 19 first-place votes and a total of 319 points in balloting by the 35 leading coaches who rate the teams weekly for UPI. Texas, a one-point winner over Baylor Saturday, was close behind with nine first-place votes and 310 points.

Southern Teams High

Southern California drew four first-place votes and 242 points. LSU, which topped the ratings the last four weeks of the 1958 season and the first seven weeks of the current campaign while building a 19-game winning streak, received 203 points. LSU did not receive a first-place vote.

Wisconsin received the other three first-place votes and 187 points. Northwestern received 159 points. Mississippi 147, Auburn 82, Penn State 75 and Tennessee 71.

Syracuse (7-0) is the first eastern school other than Army ever to lead the UPI weekly ratings. Army last held the No. 1 spot Oct. 21,1958.

This week's top 10 was made up of four teams from the South, two each from the East and Midwest, one from the Southwest and one from the Far West. Besides Syracuse, Texas (8-0) and Southern California (7-0) are the only other teams in the select group with perfect records.

Mt. Savage's 7th Season Is Best In Soccer League

Play Aggies Today In Final; Scoring Race Is Close One

ORANGE COACH — Ben Schwartzwalder, coach of Syracuse University's undefeated football team, the powerful Orange, is shown at yesterday's meeting of the Football Writers' Association of New York. His team, No. 4 in the AP poll last week appears headed upward following losses suffered Saturday by Louisana State, No. 1, and Northwestern, No. 2. (AP Photofax)

Coach John Thomas' Mt. Savage High School Indians will lower the curtain on their most successful season in the W.M.I. Soccer League when they tackle the Flintstone High School Aggies today at Mt. Savage.

Win, lose or tie, this will be Mt. Savage's best season since it came into the league in 1953.

Six years ago Mt. Savage won three and lost five for its best previous mark. The present team own a 3-2-2 record and is tied with Bruce and Beall for second place, each school having eight points in the standings.

A win or a tie will enable the Indians to gain sole possession of second place, the highest position in which the booters of that school ever have finished in seven years of competition. A Mt. Savage defeat would leave three schools tied as they are now for the runner-up position.

Valley High won the championship with a 5-1-2 record and 12 points.

Mt. Savage won the series opener from Flintstone by the score of 6-2.

Dale Holt, of Mt. Savage, is running second in the race for the individual scoring title in the league and must garner two goals today to catch Jim Duncan, of Beall, the pacesetter. Duncan has nine tallies and Hott seven. Tied for third place are Leroy Morris, Mt. Savage; Jim Pollock, Valley, and Reed Clingerman, of Flintstone, at six points each. Hott, Morris and Clingerman will see action in the league's final game of the year.

Here's how Mt. Savage teams have fared since the school entered the county high school soccer league:

Voting For Playoff Results In 8-8 Tie

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — State College conference members failed Monday to reach agreement on whether a playoff between eastern and western division football leaders should be held this fall.

Executive secretary George Springer said a second vote on whether a playoff should be held ended in an 8-8 tie with one school abstaining.

Springer said conference president Dr. John Pence of Fairmont noting there was some interest in the title game directed a special committee named last spring to discuss the matter with representatives of Fairmont and Salem Colleges — the division leaders—and determine if such a game should be staged.

Syracuse Heads Lambert Voting

Orange Unanimous Choice For Trophy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Syracuse which defeated Penn State, 20-18, last Saturday, was the unanimous first-place choice for the fourth straight week Monday in the balloting for the Lambert Trophy, emblematic of the East's major college football championship.

The Orangemen got all eight first-place votes of the coaches, writers and broadcasters who make up the rating board.

Syracuse has three games left to play — Colgate, Boston University and U.C.L.A. The upstate New York team has won all seven of its games thus far, four over Lambert trophy contenders —Navy, Holy Cross, Pitt and Penn State.

Penn State (7-1) remains the unanimous choice for the No. 2 spot this week despite its loss to Syracuse, while Army (4-2-1) retains its third spot. Pitt (4-4), however, made the biggest jump of the week, moving from sixth to fourth off a 22-14 victory over Boston College, fourth last week.

Rounding out the top 10 are Navy (3-4-1), Holy Cross (6-1) Boston College (4-3), Penn (5-1-1), Boston U. (3-4) and Dartmouth (3-3-1). Navy and Holy Cross are tied for fifth.

Alouettes Fire Peahead Walker

MONTREAL (UPI) — Douglas (Peahead) Walker, dean of Canadian professional football coaches, Monday was fired by the Montreal Alouettes after eight seasons at the helm of the Big Four club.

The announcement came from Walker himself after a morning meeting with club President Ted Workman.

Workman, who said Walker must step down in the interests of "progress," offered Walker alternative employment "within the framework of our development program." Walker, who has one year to go on a three-year contract at a reported $17,500 said "I have not entirely rejected the offer . . . It was only brought up this morning."

The gray-haired veteran who was head coach six years at Elon College, 14 years at Wake Forest and an assistant at Yale under the late Herman Hickman for one year before coming to Canada, was perhaps more affable than usual as he discussed the situation with newsmen.

"There's nothing much to say," Walker said. "I was just fired, that's all. I have not made up my mind yet what I will do . . . It's too early to say."

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Declarer was compelled to resort to the rare procedure of using dummy's side suit to draw trumps in his slam contract today.

Although the bidding was slightly aggressive, North and South arrived at a sound slam. North's free raise to two hearts with a minimum opening bid is questionable, but he wished to appraise his partner of the good fit while the level of the bidding was still low. South's use of Blackwood was reasonable and, when North showed two aces, he proceeded to six hearts.

West opened the king of spades and South ruffed the continuation. An immediate test of the heart suit was made and, when West showed out it became apparent that trumps must be handled with great delicacy.

Declarer cashed the queen and jack of clubs and entered dummy with the ace of diamonds. The king of clubs was then played. East saw that if he ruffed, his trumps could be picked up, and dummy, retaining a long trump, would be solidly established; so he discarded his jack of diamonds and declarer also let go a diamond. Declarer continued with the ace of clubs and East parted with a spade while declarer shed another diamond. On the last club East was faced with Hobson's choice. If he ruffed, declarer would overruff, draw trumps, and still have a heart in dummy to take care of the fifth diamond. If he continued to discard, South could dispose of his low diamond and then take the trump finesse.

Note that if declarer attempts to ruff one diamond in dummy before running the clubs he meets with immediate defeat when East overruffs and, if he takes the trump finesse without cashing dummy's high clubs he loses the contract, for he will have no entry to dummy.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — A co-starring twosome to rattle your back teeth is U-A's idea to team Steve Reeves of "Hercules" fame and Zsa Zsa Gabor, the Hungarian publicity blitz, in "Fear Strikes at Dawn." The combined talents of Reeves who has been the superman of the hour since "Hercules," and Zsa Zsa, who, anyway you look at her is a superwoman of sorts, should generate plenty of voltage. I know Max Youngstein has sent Zsa Zsa the script and she's reading it.

As for Reeves—he really made an impact in "Hercules" both in this country and in Europe and has been much in demand. Steve has "Goliath and the Barbarian" (for American International Co.). "The Battle of Marathon" for Jacques Tourneur, filmed in Paris, and a picture made in Germany—all coming up.

After a week of added scenes for "Journey to the Center of the Earth," Arlene Dahl returned to New York. She won't be there long as she goes to Germany for "Mistress of the World," a motion picture to be made by one of Germany's outstanding producers.

About the time she is in Germany, Fernando Lamas will be in Rome making a picture and she will join him there when she finishes her movie.

And by the way I am told that there'll be a big premiere for "Journey to the Center of the Earth," the 16th of December because 20th is very high on it.

With "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," as recorded by the 350-voice Mormon Temple Choir proving to be one of the biggest choral sellers of record history, Virginia and Andrew Stone have certainly pulled a musical coup in signing this group for the vocal scoring of "The Last Voyage." The Stones quietly slipped into Salt Lake City to talk with the Mormon authorities about getting the magnificent choir for their sea drama. If they had hit a gold mine, the Stones couldn't have been more delighted when they telephoned back to MGM to say "we got them!"

This, alone, is enough to make "The Last Voyage" with Bob Stack and Dorothy Malone a "must" for music lovers.

Met Flo (Mrs. Jack, Sr.) Haley and she told me that her son, Jack Jr., had received a peacetime citation for meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flying.

"Jack didn't so much as mention it, and I would never have known about it if someone hadn't told me," said Flo.

"He's a brilliant boy," I told her, "and he put on a fine show for the Thalian Ball."

Later, I found on my desk a copy of the citation issued to Lt. John J. Haley Jr., who distinguished himself while flying operational activities at ceiling zero testing the suitability of runway lights at Dow Air Force Base, Maine. Obtaining vital photographic documentation for the final test report.

When Fred Astaire bought his mother an apartment on East 57th in New York City, she found on her arrival from California that it had no color TV in the place. With her daughter Adele in West Virginia, she called Gaylord Hausern an old friend, and explained her problem.

"I must see my son's spectacular in color," she said. Gaylord replied, "That's easy, I'll call Jessica Dragonette — she has everything."

On the night of Fred's show, Mrs. Astaire, Gaylord, Jessica and her husband watched it in color. When the show ended, Jessica took off the two white orchids she was wearing and pinned them on Fred's mother for being the mother of such a talented son.

There's a new girl in town — shapely 22-year-old Dolores Erickson. She's such a beauty and has so much personality, that she was signed by Paramount without a test.

Talent scout Bill Meiklejohn heard about Dolores and saw pictures of her as a model, so he went to San Francisco to see her. When he arrived, he found she was laid up with a broken leg, and was in no condition to discuss Hollywood opportunities. After she was better, she flew here and was signed immediately. Dolores is now going through a grooming process, and you'll be seeing her soon on the screen.

Towards A Single Standard

In firing Charles Van Doren, the National Broadcasting Company showed conspicuous courage and I think a high degree of moral principle. For this it is being castigated around the country for cowardice, for hypocrisy, for panic.

Firing Van Doren was the opposite of all those things. In the first place, the mail count was running nine to one in favor of Van Doren. The network knew there would be outrage. The popular decision would be to keep him, issuing some sort of mealy-mouthed "He has already suffered enough" statement. The decision was to be right, rather than to be popular, and I applaud the network for not yielding to popular sentimentality.

Charles Van Doren is an appealing, curly-haired scion of a distinguished family. He is also a perjuror of deepest hue. He conspired to commit perjury and clung to his perjury until smoked out by overwhelming evidence to the contrary. I feel very sorry for Charles Van Doren but I do not think exceptions should be made in our system of jurisprudence because a man has an audience of millions. The very basis of his being hired by NBC was proved to be false; he compounded the felony by repeating falsehoods over NBC; he broke the law.

We have already established the precedent that murder can be committed among members of the jet set without anyone even being indicted for it. I strongly object to extending this legal immunity to quiz winners, no matter how good-looking, no matter how high their rating.

This is the Dreyfus case in reverse - - which is quite a commentary on the American people. In the old country old hatreds run deep. Here life is a constant popularity contest. Who's in? Who's out? One is never hated here; one is popular or unpopular, at the prom, at the polls, on the air. And when Rep. Springer declared that he hoped Columbia University wouldn't take action on Van Doren until popular sentiment could be tested, he uttered one of the most thoroughly immoral and yet unquestionably American statements I have ever heard.

The Supreme Court follows the election returns, said Finley Peter Dunne. There is no right or wrong - - it's how well you're liked. The attitude at NBC is that there can be no double standard of justice - - one for the rich in popularity, another for the poor - - and for that they're being denounced by editorial writers and drowned in mail.

This is unjust but it is also rich in irony. I can't honestly say that it was television that invented the popularity contest as the only criterion of behavior but, God knows, no other field of endeavor is so rigidly ruled by it. I can't think of any line of work where excellence counts for so little, where right and wrong are entirely a matter of numbers on the rating lists.

If it does nothing else, this whole mess should deal a heavy, perhaps mortal blow to the worship of ratings. There must be some other standard of right or wrong than those. NBC President Robert Kintner's suggestion that quiz-rigging be a Federal offense simply sidesteps the real issue, which is that these big money quizzes should never have been allowed to wreck the program structure in the first place.

"Another Evening with Fred Astaire".

The only complaint - - and it's not a complaint, really - - I can voice about "Another Evening with Fred Astaire" is that it was awfully like the first Evening with Fred Astaire although, in a way, that's about as high a compliment as I can pay. It was a judicious and meticulously presented display of Mr. Astaire's million-dollar personality and million-dollar legs and Miss Chase's million-dollar chassis and the multi-million dollar songs of America's greatest composers - - George Gershwin, Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, Harold Arlen, Arthur Schwartz - - and that's quite a bundle.

The arrangement, the tone, the finish - - Mr. Astaire rattling off a dozen or so wonderful songs he's introduced - - were all like the first show. I didn't particularly care for a bit of nonsense between Mr. Astaire and Jonah Jones over some stools but otherwise it was a great though slavish imitation of the first show.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Declarer was compelled to resort to the rare procedure of using dummy's side suit to draw trumps in his slam contract today.

Although the bidding was slightly aggressive, North and South arrived at a sound slam. North's free raise to two hearts with a minimum opening bid is questionable, but he wished to appraise his partner of the good fit while the level of the bidding was still low. South's use of Blackwood was reasonable and, when North showed two aces, he proceeded to six hearts.

West opened the king of spades and South ruffed the continuation. An immediate test of the heart suit was made and, when West showed out it became apparent that trumps must be handled with great delicacy.

Declarer cashed the queen and jack of clubs and entered dummy with the ace of diamonds. The king of clubs was then played. East saw that if he ruffed, his trumps could be picked up, and dummy, retaining a long trump, would be solidly established; so he discarded his jack of diamonds and declarer also let go a diamond. Declarer continued with the ace of clubs and East parted with a spade while declarer shed another diamond. On the last club East was faced with Hobson's choice. If he ruffed, declarer would overruff, draw trumps, and still have a heart in dummy to take care of the fifth diamond. If he continued to discard, South could dispose of his low diamond and then take the trump finesse.

Note that if declarer attempts to ruff one diamond in dummy before running the clubs he meets with immediate defeat when East overruffs and, if he takes the trump finesse without cashing dummy's high clubs he loses the contract, for he will have no entry to dummy.

"Another Evening with Fred Astaire".

The only complaint - - and it's not a complaint, really - - I can voice about "Another Evening with Fred Astaire" is that it was awfully like the first Evening with Fred Astaire although, in a way, that's about as high a compliment as I can pay. It was a judicious and meticulously presented display of Mr. Astaire's million-dollar personality and million-dollar legs and Miss Chase's million-dollar chassis and the multi-million dollar songs of America's greatest composers - - George Gershwin, Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, Harold Arlen, Arthur Schwartz - - and that's quite a bundle.

The arrangement, the tone, the finish - - Mr. Astaire rattling off a dozen or so wonderful songs he's introduced - - were all like the first show. I didn't particularly care for a bit of nonsense between Mr. Astaire and Jonah Jones over some stools but otherwise it was a great though slavish imitation of the first show.

Stock Market Retreats After Strong Opening

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market responded to the steel injunction with a strong opening but turned around sharply before the close on heavy profit-taking.

Steels led the way in the early trading as the Supreme Court ruling upholding the injunction was greeted by a rush of buy orders.

The heavy selling erased a good part of the day's earlier gains and the list finished just a fraction over the previous close.

Steels were among the hardest hit with losses running to more than 5 points in Granite City and Continental. Lukens lost more than 2, and Bethlehem, U. S. steel and Youngstown a point or more.

Trading expanded to 3,700,000 shares from 3,450,000 shares on Friday. The market was the broadest in some time with 1,250 issues crossing the tape. Of these 531 advanced, 395 declined and 224 held unchanged. New highs for the year outnumbered new lows, 31 to 22.

American Motors was the most active issue of the day with 126,500 shares. Following were Studebaker - Packard, Studebaker-Packard when-issued, Electric & Musical Industries and Burlington Industries.

Motors favored the downside with Chrysler and General Motors both off around a half or more. American Motors toppled 5½ to 82¾. Studebaker lost more than a point, while Ford added ⅝.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Weight Watching

Perhaps your figure isn't as good as it should be — because you've always had the wrong idea about your correct weight.

The usual weight chart is based on averages. So many women at a certain height weighed so much —and the average of these weights is recorded as correct for everyone at the same height. A doctor is the first to tell you that this may not be true in your case. Perhaps you have weighed in at his office and remarked on the difference between what the scale says and what you think it should say, only to have him disagree. This is because he knows your individual makeup and makes allowances for it.

The best weight for you depends on more than your height. Your bone structure and your age are quite as definite factors. Because the correct weight for the individual, not just for anyone, is so important to so many parts of the Powers program, we have worked out a sure-fire and easy method of calculation. It's outlined in my booklet, "How Much Should You Weigh?", to make this same vital self-evaluation possible for you, address me, c/o this newspaper, enclosing 10c (in coin) and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The scale needle may tip to the exact point where you always thought it should, yet you may still be a little too thin or too plump. Those few extra pounds that should be gained or lost will surely make a difference. A wonderful figure improvement for you may depend very much on a weight calculation that's sure to be right.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Corn and rye were lower, but other grain futures advanced Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was up ¾ to 1¼; corn off ¼ to 1; oats up ¼ to ¾; rye off ⅛ to ¾; and soybeans up ¼ to ¾.

Wheat prices held strong following early commission house and stop loss buying. Offerings were light. Exporters also bought, while mills sold small amounts of wheat.

Corn closed quiet and irregularly lower. There was a considerable volume of trading earlier, as cash grain houses sold December and northwest brokers sold deferred contracts. Local traders and exporters led the buying. Receipts were light and the cash basis firm.

Export subsidies were granted on 980,000 bushels of corn.

Oats were higher, with the deferred months showing the greatest advance. December encountered early liquidation, but cash interests took the delivery and sold March. There was a good local demand for March.

Rye opened strong, but prices soon became easier along with the Winnipeg market.

Soybeans were also strong at the start, and all months but November reached new high points for the season. Buying orders had accumulated overnight, and additional buying was inspired by higher meal prices. Profit-taking and commission house sales dropped prices later to a firm level.

The United Arab Republic and Pakistan were said to have bought hard and white wheat.

Outside markets were mixed.

Stock Market Retreats After Strong Opening

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market responded to the steel injunction with a strong opening but turned around sharply before the close on heavy profit-taking.

Steels led the way in the early trading as the Supreme Court ruling upholding the injunction was greeted by a rush of buy orders.

The heavy selling erased a good part of the day's earlier gains and the list finished just a fraction over the previous close.

Steels were among the hardest hit with losses running to more than 5 points in Granite City and Continental. Lukens lost more than 2, and Bethlehem, U. S. steel and Youngstown a point or more.

Trading expanded to 3,700,000 shares from 3,450,000 shares on Friday. The market was the broadest in some time with 1,250 issues crossing the tape. Of these 531 advanced, 395 declined and 224 held unchanged. New highs for the year outnumbered new lows, 31 to 22.

American Motors was the most active issue of the day with 126,500 shares. Following were Studebaker - Packard, Studebaker-Packard when-issued, Electric & Musical Industries and Burlington Industries.

Motors favored the downside with Chrysler and General Motors both off around a half or more. American Motors toppled 5½ to 82¾. Studebaker lost more than a point, while Ford added ⅝.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Weight Watching

Perhaps your figure isn't as good as it should be — because you've always had the wrong idea about your correct weight.

The usual weight chart is based on averages. So many women at a certain height weighed so much—and the average of these weights is recorded as correct for everyone at the same height. A doctor is the first to tell you that this may not be true in your case. Perhaps you have weighed in at his office and remarked on the difference between what the scale says and what you think it should say, only to have him disagree. This is because he knows your individual makeup and makes allowances for it.

The best weight for you depends on more than your height. Your bone structure and your age are quite as definite factors. Because the correct weight for the individual, not just for anyone, is so important to so many parts of the Powers program, we have worked out a sure-fire and easy method of calculation. It's outlined in my booklet, "How Much Should You Weigh?", to make this same vital self-evaluation possible for you, address me, c/o this newspaper, enclosing 10c (in coin) and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The scale needle may tip to the exact point where you always thought it should, yet you may still be a little too thin or too plump. Those few extra pounds that should be gained or lost will surely make a difference. A wonderful figure improvement for you may depend very much on a weight calculation that's sure to be right.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Corn and rye were lower, but other grain futures advanced Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was up ¾ to 1¼; corn off ¼ to 1; oats up ¼ to ¾; rye off ⅛ to ¾; and soybeans up ¼ to ¾.

Wheat prices held strong following early commission house and stop loss buying. Offerings were light. Exporters also bought, while mills sold small amounts of wheat.

Corn closed quiet and irregularly lower. There was a considerable volume of trading earlier, as cash grain houses sold December and northwest brokers sold deferred contracts. Local traders and exporters led the buying. Receipts were light and the cash basis firm.

Export subsidies were granted on 980,000 bushels of corn.

Oats were higher, with the deferred months showing the greatest advance. December encountered early liquidation, but cash interests took the delivery and sold March. There was a good local demand for March.

Rye opened strong, but prices soon became easier along with the Winnipeg market.

Soybeans were also strong at the start, and all months but November reached new high points for the season. Buying orders had accumulated overnight, and additional buying was inspired by higher meal prices. Profit-taking and commission house sales dropped prices later to a firm level.

The United Arab Republic and Pakistan were said to have bought hard and white wheat.

Outside markets were mixed.

Smith To Head City Airport Commission

Commercial Plane Service Is Sought

W. Donald Smith, a member of the Cumberland Municipal Airport Commission for several years, last night was elected chairman of the commission.

He succeeded Arthur J. Weber, who resigned from the chairmanship but remained as a member of the commission. Mr. Weber has headed the commission for several years and was one of the prominent Cumberland citizens who were instrumental in its construction.

The meeting, held in the office of Mayor J. Edwin Keech, was the first attended by George B. Newman, president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, who recently accepted an appointment on the commission.

The commission discussed the possibility of restoring commercial air service at the airport. Several companies have been contacted by local officials since Allegheny Airlines halted local service.

Commission members are also urging that the Civil Aeronautics Board place the case concerning Cumberland's service on its agenda.

Commercial plane service was started here in 1949 by All American, predecessor to Allegheny Airlines, which halted service here on February 9 after the CAB ruled it was not in the public interest to force the airline to continue service to Cumberland and several other points on its system.

It was allowed to suspend local service while the CAB continued an investigation on needs of the communities for the service.

The airline said the area did not provide enough passengers to justify stops here. The CAB pointed out there is some indication "as Cumberland alleges, and as Allegheny admits, that the low traffic response at Cumberland is due to the low frequency of schedules provided."

Mayor J. Edwin Keech places the crown of "Miss Cinderella Pancake III" atop the head of pretty Helen Paxton, 20-year-old bookkeeper who was selected as queen of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce's Pancake Day program at the State Armory here yesterday. Miss Paxton succeeds Miss Rosalie Femi, last year's queen who attended last night's ceremonies. She will reign as "Miss Cinderella Pancake III" for a year, attending dances, participating in parades and representing the Jaycees in numerous other functions.

GOP To Open Permanent Office Here

Registration Drive Will Begin Soon

The Republican Party is opening a permanent office in Allegany County, J. Glenn Beall Jr., chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, announced yesterday.

The office will be located at 1 North Liberty Street in quarters formerly occupied by the D. P. Miller Company.

Mrs. Janet C. Lancaster, of Cumberland, will be the permanent secretary. She is a former clerk of the Board of Election Supervisors and a former president of the Women's Republican Club.

Mr. Beall said the office is being decorated and furnished and should be ready for opening in two weeks.

Registration Drive Set

He said this will be the first time, to his knowledge, that an Allegany County political party has had a permanent office.

All Republican records and information on voting and registration will be placed in a permanent file, and the office quarters will become the central headquarters for all Republican political activity in Allegany County.

Plans are being made, Mr. Beall said, to have the activities of all Republican units in the county cleared through the office.

Opening of the headquarters, he said, is the first step in the Republican effort in the 1960 election.

But he stressed that the office is not primarily a campaign move but the first step toward putting Republican Party efforts on a permanent basis.

Has 5,000 Lead

The idea, he said, is to operate the year around instead of just before elections.

A GOP registration drive will be started, the Central Committee chairman said, as soon as the permanent office is in operation.

He said GOP leaders believe the party has a "wonderful chance" to regain the Sixth Congressional seat next year.

The Republican Party had a lead of over 5,000 voters in early fall among the some 37,000 registered voters in Allegany County.

The Mellott car ran into the rear of the Lynch car at the intersection of North Mechanic Street and Henderson Avenue on April 3. Following the lower court trial in which Mellott was directed to pay $223.45 damages, his attorney, Gorman Getty, filed an appeal.

Attorney for the plaintiff was William L. Wilson.

He pointed out that some of the schools have interesting displays and exhibits, centering on soil and water conservation, wild life and forestry and minerals.

Mt. Savage elementary pupils have made a model of a state park including small picnic tables and benches and little animals. Northeast and West Side schools also have displays, he added.

In an experiment with topsoil and subsoil and their value to plant life, some of the youngsters have planted beans and observed their growth in either type soil. Mr. Gordon said the young pupils are "doing a wonderful job" and are benefitting from their studies.

GOP To Open Permanent Office Here

Registration Drive Will Begin Soon

The Republican Party is opening a permanent office in Allegany County, J. Glenn Beall Jr., chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, announced yesterday.

The office will be located at 1 North Liberty Street in quarters formerly occupied by the D. P. Miller Company.

Mrs. Janet C. Lancaster, of Cumberland, will be the permanent secretary. She is a former clerk of the Board of Election Supervisors and a former president of the Women's Republican Club.

Mr. Beall said the office is being decorated and furnished and should be ready for opening in two weeks.

Registration Drive Set

He said this will be the first time, to his knowledge, that an Allegany County political party has had a permanent office.

All Republican records and information on voting and registration will be placed in a permanent file, and the office quarters will become the central headquarters for all Republican political activity in Allegany County.

Plans are being made, Mr. Beall said, to have the activities of all Republican units in the county cleared through the office.

Opening of the headquarters, he said, is the first step in the Republican effort in the 1960 election.

But he stressed that the office is not primarily a campaign move but the first step toward putting Republican Party efforts on a permanent basis.

Has 5,000 Lead

The idea, he said, is to operate the year around instead of just before elections.

A GOP registration drive will be started, the Central Committee chairman said, as soon as the permanent office is in operation.

He said GOP leaders believe the party has a "wonderful chance" to regain the Sixth Congressional seat next year.

The Republican Party had a lead of over 5,000 voters in early fall among the some 37,000 registered voters in Allegany County.

The Mellott car ran into the rear of the Lynch car at the intersection of North Mechanic Street and Henderson Avenue on April 3. Following the lower court trial in which Mellott was directed to pay $223.45 damages, his attorney, Gorman Getty, filed an appeal.

Attorney for the plaintiff was William L. Wilson.
